Wanted, Rain
If Trouble, Then What?
Balfour and the Pee-Wees
The Lead Pencil Shape

EXCESSIVE HEAT INJURES ITALY'S crops; religious processions and prayers for rain in many places. That must give Mussolini a sort of helpless, indignant feeling.

But men, in time, will find a way to control rainfall. Italy's necessity may persuade Mussolini to look into it. Absence of microscopic dust in the atmosphere is one cause of drought. It should be easy with airplanes, to supply missing dust—preferably some hydrophilous substance, like pulverized lime.

It is proposed to unite Germany and the fragment of Austria after the joyous carving up by Allies. France and other nations don't want a bigger, more powerful Germany.

French newspapers, remembering the American peace treaty recently invented, asks: "What would America do should events precipitate trouble?"

America, in all probability would do something foolish. But at least ninety out of one hundred million Americans will hope, if events precipitate trouble in Europe, that America will know enough to mind its own business and let Europe attend to her business.

Lord Balfour celebrates his 80th birthday, and the Prince of Wales, congratulating him, says Balfour was a member of the cabinet "eight years before I was born, and his golf handicap at 80 is at a lower level than mine is ever likely to attain."

The Prince might have added that Lord Balfour's is an older English family than that of the Prince. Balfour descends from Lord Burleigh, prime minister under Queen Elizabeth.

British newspaper praises Balfour's long, honorable career, and work done for his country.

His contributions to science are important. Some of them would shock our fundamentalists. The best practical work he ever did for Britain was in connection with the United States Treasury.

He did another neat piece of work when, at the Washington conference, England being unable financially to compete with us in ships, Balfour persuaded our boy statesmen to junk our finest battleships, some not finished, thus saving Britain expense. Balfour is a statesman; ours are politicians, or pee-wees.

Paris fashions for this fall demand "the silhouette." The woman whose outline closely imitates that of a lead pencil will be envied by others that stick out in front, back or at the sides. "A low belt and slight circular fullness, set in on the left side, all the rest lead pencil." That's what you must look like ladies. Get your rubber suits and begin to perspire—unless you have common sense.

For some worry is a necessity. Here is something PERMANENT to worry about.

The earth is losing its speed in the well organized procession around our sun, the earth falls back.

The loss is slow, only one hundredth part of a second each century. But time is long, the world is more than a thousand million years old, and will last hundreds of millions of years longer.

Lillian Leitzel, "queen of the flying trapeze," and Alfred Cordona, brilliant gymnast, are married. They will continue in the circus, but they will NOT be the father and mother of circus prodigies. Their little boys probably not be able to turn even one back somersault, and the girls will be afraid of the flying trapeze or any height. Wise nature thus prevents specializing through generations.

SOLDIERS GUARDING NOBILE

London, July 26 (INS)—With flags at half-mast, the Italian city of Milano, with Gen. Umberto Nobile and the survivors of the Italia disaster on board, arrived at Narvik, Norway, today, said a Central News dispatch from that city.

The arrival, stated the dispatch, was watched with sullen interest by the harbor workers, who refused to handle the ropes thrown from the ship to the docks.

As soon as the steamer had been moored an Italian soldier with a rifle and fixed bayonet was stationed on the middle gangway.

It was announced that Gen.

Toy Plane Soars 58 Minutes

Highland Light, July 26—Soaring into the air in a beautiful effect, the German monoplane glider Darmstadt today established a new American record for motorless flight in the remaining short part of it.

Ideal weather conditions existed for the first time in two weeks and Peter Hesselbach, champion glider of Germany, who piloted the plane, declared he could have remained in the air much longer.

It was understood that another flight would be made late afternoon possibly with a view of attempting to shatter the world's record for gliding of 14 hours and 23 minutes, established in Germany by Hesselbach.

The previous American record was established in 1911 by Orrville Wright at Kitty Hawk, N. C., in an entirely different type of glider.

TUNNEY FLIES TO N. Y. BATTLE WITH HEENEY; PICKED FOR EASY WIN

By NICK FLATLEY

New York, July 26—Gene Tunney is defending his heavyweight title here this evening, and doubtless will retain it, but nobody seems to care. There will be no millions flung around after the boys have mixed out of the ring and this third or fourth fight of the century is done and over with.

New York has not warmed up to Champion Gene Tunney, and Promoter Tex Rickard will be the luckiest man in the world if he can break anywhere near even on this one.

Tunney is a 2 to 1 favorite, and the odds should be heavier, considering the records of the men. Tunney has taken them as they came along. His two title efforts were victories over Jack Dempsey, even though the last one was a bit sour. Any boxer who has two verdicts over the hollow shell of Dempsey has something to cheer about. Heeney fought lots of the boys, but never did show any real class. He

New York, July 26 (INS)—After an overland flight, just a trifle more than two hours, Gene Tunney landed in the Hudson river this afternoon at 12:23 o'clock in the big amphibian plane that carried him here from Speculator, N. Y., for his world's heavyweight championship fight with Tom Heeney at the Yankee stadium tonight.

The plane, bearing the champion, and his friends, W. O. McGeehan and C. V. Bobb, its owner, zoomed down the river from the north, arrived opposite the Columbia Yacht Club, then circled and landed, going up stream.

It came to rest opposite 96th st. and launches from the club put out to bring the champion and his party to the shore. The pilot of the plane was Billy Winston, who was at the controls with Bernard Gimbel when his party crashed at Speculator last week.

New Bedford, July 26—Defying Judge Frank A. Milliken of the local district court, who declared that picketing must stop, 300 strikers were on duty this morning in front of the Sharp mill, where many clashes have occurred, and where 43 pickets were arrested last night.

The labor leaders announced in further defiance of the authorities that a parade will be held Saturday, despite the refusal of Mayor Ashley to grant a permit. Three weeks ago, when the last parade took place, 50 of the marchers were taken into custody.

Chief of Police McLeod declared that this morning's line was illegal and that arrests would result. He reiterated his determination to bring picketing to a minimum.

SMITH IGNORES ADVICE TO 'SOFT PEDAL RUM'

By RAYMOND I. BORST,
International News Correspondent

Albany, N. Y., July 26—Against the wishes of some of his closest friends, Governor Smith is understood to have decided to discuss prohibition in all of his speeches in the presidential campaign.

Some national Democratic leaders are reported to have told the Governor it would be good politics to soft-pedal prohibition when he invades the Middle West and Far West, but he is said to have told them bluntly that he always has spoken his mind in political battles and he does not intend to change his tactics.

In a futile effort to persuade him not to make prohibition the major issue, some leaders pointed out that if he has his say on this subject in his notification speech, there should be no necessity for stressing

Nobile and his companions would not go ashore until darkness, when they will go direct to a special train provided for their transport to Rome.

A representative from the Italian legation at Stockholm went to Narvik to greet the Nobile survivors and help them hasten their homeward journey. They are expected to begin their train journey tonight or early tomorrow morning.

Resentment of the Norwegian people over the expedition and the subsequent loss of Capt. Roald Amundsen led to precautionary measures to prevent any untoward incident.

Four Ships Now Hunting Missing Nobile Men

Oslo, Norway, July 26 (AP)—Four vessels are now exploring the waters between Spitsbergen, Bear Island and Greenland in an effort to find the missing Amundsen party. These waters have hitherto not been reconnoitred thoroughly, most of the searching being done east of Spitsbergen.

The vessels are the Norwegian cruiser Tordenskjold, the Norwegian surveying vessel, Michael Sars, and the French cruiser, Strasbourg, as well as the dispatch boat, Quentin Roosevelt.

With the French and Norwegian ships exploring west of Spitsbergen and the Russian icebreaker Rodey ordered to explore the region around Franz Joseph Land east of Spitsbergen, the entire waters on which the Amundsen plane may have come down will be combed.

The sealer Hobby, which was placed at the disposal of the Norwegian government by Miss Louise Boyd of San Rafael, Cal., who had engaged it for a hunting trip to Greenland, will soon pass through Hinlopen Strait in search of the still missing men of the Italia expedition.

Swedes Seeking Full Malmgren Death Probe

Stockholm, July 26 (AP)—While no official information has been given out on the subject, it is generally believed in Stockholm that the Swedish government has been in communication with Italy regarding the question of an investigation of the death of Dr. Finn Malmgren, Swedish meteorologist aboard the dirigible Italia.

Feeling on the subject has been most intense among many Swedish people and so far as can be determined there appears to be growing opinion throughout the country that an impartial neutral commission should inquire into the Malmgren affair.

Nothing has been officially made known regarding Swedish representations in Rome toward an international investigation, but it is not denied that a lively correspondence to this end has been exchanged.

The newspaper Nya Dagligt Allehanda, in response to suggestions that a reward might stimulate the search, has offered $2500 for the recovery of Dr. Malmgren's body.

WOMAN PICKET RESISTS ARREST

'RUN IN' BY NEW BEDFORD POLICE

In their effort to preserve order in the New Bedford textile strike the police encounter many difficulties. The picketing of the mills has been marked by rioting and the refusal of pickets to disperse has led to many arrests. Here is a typical scene, three officers being required to 'remove' one woman.

greatly through enhanced real estate values in the vicinity, that the Boston & Albany and the New Haven Railroads would themselves gain great advantages through the proposed union station. Other improvements would follow, he said.

"If the Department of Public Utilities issues a decree favorable to the building of a Back Bay union station, the city will forthwith initiate a movement by petition to the General Court for construction of a new bridge across the Charles River at Dartmouth st. for relief of expanding traffic," the mayor said.

He also mentioned the possibility of filling in Fort Point Channel and South Bay, eliminating railroad drawbridges and making a rearrangement of trackage possible.

Spokesmen for the Chamber of Commerce and Boston Real Estate Exchange were among those supporting the proposal. Horace Guild, chairman of the joint committee of Back Bay business men's organizations, declared property and business valued at many hundred thousand dollars are endangered by the ugliness, inconvenience and confusion at the three present stations.

The Exeter st. yard of the Boston & Albany Railroad is depreciating more than $25,000,000 worth of neighboring property, its contended. There are more than 1,000,000 square feet of undeveloped land in this lot on which the city is losing thousands of dollars in taxes.

"The New Haven and the Boston & Albany own adjoining land at Back Bay station, Trinity pl. and Huntington ave., suitable for use as a union station for passenger and baggage service," said Mayor Nichols.

"The daily travel at these three stations is in excess of 50,000. Passengers and baggage cannot be interchanged without resulting expense, confusion and delay. Continuance of this antiquated service is discouraging to travelers.

"It misrepresents the true commerical importance of the city, ignores the rapid growth of business in the Back Bay and South End and disregards the commercial and economic advantages to be had from a unified station.

"By careful planning, it is possible that a union station can be developed that will give the B. & A. increased trackage between its yards and the South terminal, which it needs.

"A union station would promote business and conserve that now being lost. The present railway terminals of the city are inadequate to serve a rapidly growing metropolis. Thirty years ago, when the South station was being built, it was a source of disappointment to many far-sighted persons that a union station was not constructed in Back Bay. Had that been done, the assessed valuation of that part of the city would unquestionably have been one hundred millions more than at present.

"The public grants its railroads certain exclusive rights and in return exacts service through enactments which clothe this tribunal with its powers. While the expense must be reasonable, it is the public in the last instance that pays the bills."

WOMAN IN DEWEY SQ. "L" PLUNGE IDENTIFIED

The "mystery" woman who plunged from the Elevated railway structure in Dewey sq., and nearly lost her life through the fall and through being struck by a police auto, was identified today by a brother as Mrs. Vera Miller of Seaver st., Roxbury.

According to police, the woman attempted suicide. A note, written on brown wrapping paper in pencil, was found after she jumped.

Her condition, at the City hospital, was critical today.

The woman dropped into Dewey sq. when it was jammed with traffic. Men and women on the station platform, 25 feet above the street, saw Mrs. Miller plunge from the structure as a police car approached, and it struck her as she fell on the pavement.

the subject in each speech. He is said to have replied he wants the country to have a clear understanding of where he stands.

PLANS BRIEF REST

The conference the Governor will have in New York tomorrow night with Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland is regarded as highly significant because Ritchie is one of the outstanding foes of prohibition.

Governor Smith will spend the week-end and possibly a couple of days next week at Good Ground, L. I., because of the insistence of his family that he get a brief rest. If he followed his own inclination he would return to the executive mansion directly after his conference with Governor Ritchie and buckle down to the task of completing the acceptance address he will deliver on August 22.

Although the Governor's health has never been better, he has been advised by his family and friends to get all the rest he can between now and his active campaign.

George H. Graves, secretary to Governor Smith, has been named chairman of the committee in charge of the notification ceremony. The event will be staged on the steps of the Capitol. The national committee, State chairman and prominent Democrats will sit on the platform. The ceremony will be broadcast over 50 radio stations.

Convinced the cities alone can elect Smith, the campaign managers have agreed upon a plan to center their heavy fire upon the urban population from coast to coast.

PLANS TO AID FARMERS.

The cities are "wet." They contain more than half the total population of the nation. In many states they dominate the final result in the electorial college—these were determining factors in the decision of the executive committee, a member of the committee revealed today.

The country precincts are not to be ignored, however, as evidenced by Smith's promise to call a national conference on agricultural policy prior to inauguration, in the event of his election.

Still another factor in the decision was the consideration that the bulk of the Democratic vote and virtually all of the Democratic organization in the contested states of the East, Middle West and West are centered in the larger cities.

"L" CRASH REPORT NOT DUE UNTIL NEXT WEEK

The investigation that the inspectors of the railroad and railway division of the State Department of Public Utilities are making into the cause of the "L" accident last Sunday will probably not be completed until the first part of next week, Henry W. Seward, chief of the division, disclosed today.

Considerable time, he said, is being devoted to the examination of persons on the wrecked train, as well as those near the scene when the fatal accident occurred.

the success of the strike and will be continued. "The right to picket is more vital than the restoration of the 10 per cent cut," he said.

Eighty-two pickets arrested last night were arraigned in court in batches, the cases being continued to July 31. All but one were represented by Henry Hoffman, Textile Workers' Union counsel. The exception was Donald Thompson, a Textile Council volunteer worker.

Local officers were assisted by 32 policemen from Fall River when they raided the picket lines. Deputy Chief Chase, who was in command, first warned the pickets against illegal parading and then deputy sheriffs read the riot act. The police then seized the nearest pickets who were placed in waiting motor trucks and taken to the police station.

Among the leaders taken into custody were Miss Amy Cehecter, T. M. C., publicity agent and correspondent for several radical newspapers and a press association; Miss Elisabeth Donnelley of Boston, children's organizer of the T. M. C.; Miss Lydia Gonzavas, picket leader, also of the T. M. C.; Augusto C. G. Pinto, arrested for the eighth time since the strike began, a T. M. C. picket captain; Casmiro Lameiras, T. M. C. picket leader, and Hackson W. Wells, a second-year Harvard student, who came to New Bedford in the interests of the radical element of the strikers.

The others were unable to give their names.

Daniel McDonald of Marion st., Brookline, was arrested as he dazedly walked away from the accident. Belmont police charged him with drunkenness after a doctor treated his wounds.

One sedan carried a man, the woman and the infant, heading in the direction of Boston.

The other carried Blakely and three men companions and was headed in the direction of Belmont Center.

The crash threw two of the men in the rear seat through the roof and crushed the others against the motor. One man, apparently unhurt or dazed disappearw in the crowd that gathered.

The other machine was forced over the side of the road where the buffeted occupants lost consciousness.

BEGS SOMEONE TO FIND HIS LOST PET

"Prince ain't a thoroughbred, but gee, he's a smart little fellow. Why, Prince understood just as well as the kids how to play ball."

From his sick bed in City Hospital today Henry Napierkowski, 14, forgot his aching joints as he told how his pet had disappeared while playing with children in Franklin Park two weeks ago. Henry has rheumatic fever and for the past three weeks has been unable to sit up.

"I heard that some one had found Prince yesterday and I felt better right away," Henry said. "I was so glad to get Prince back that I felt like sitting up awhile and they propped me up. Then I found out they had not found my dog. Prince is a white German poodle with a black spot on his ear, and he knows his name.

"I raised him since he was a baby. He is four months old now and just full of play all the time."

Henry's brother, Chester, and his father took Prince to romp on Franklin Park and soon boy and dog were lost in a crowd of children playing with the pup, who disappeared in the confusion. His sick master has been inconsolable since he learned of his loss.

"If anyone finds Prince they can take him home to 11 Middle st., South Boston," Henry added wistfully. "I hope I can get him back."

WIDOWER BARS FLAPPERS IN WIFE HUNT

It's going to be a bit difficult for "Sonny" if Daddy reads this, because "Sonny" says that Daddy, who is only 50, will distribute him in four directions if he finds out his offspring wants to marry again.

The son is Walter N. Bates, roofer and printer. He is 63 years old and lives in Park st., Wellesley Park.

Bates, who has been a widower for 12 years, is getting sick of traveling alone, he said today. He wants a widow or maiden who also has known the pangs of loneliness.

Flappers or triflers need not apply, because Bates desires no "painted doll."

"If father knew about this, he would kill me," Bates said in explaining that he is a bit diffident in broadcasting his appeal for a new spouse.

"Father is 50. But he's full of pep. He lives in Hyde Park and is worth a quarter or a half a million.

"But, ding it, I'm tired of living alone. I know there must be widows or maidens who are just as lonesome as I am. The trouble is to find them.

"I almost got married again 10 years ago. I met a bang-up good lady. She owned 300 acres with buildings on it, but according to the terms of her mother's will she would lose all property when she married.

"I'm trying now again. I want someone with sense. Flappers go too far in everything. The woman I want is one who can knock together a good meal and sit down at night and read or sew and keep her mouth shut when there's no need of it being open."

NOVICE DRIVER'S TOLL IS 7 IN FIRST CRASH

Miss Clarice Clark, 20, art student of Audubon rd., Back Bay, injured severely in an automobile crash in Waltham while going to a ball game in Lanconia, was still in Waltham Hospital today. Physicians said they expected she would remain there for several days.

Seven persons were injured in the accident, a collision between automobiles operated by James Dudley, of Massachusetts ave., Cambridge, and by Miss Jean Lowe, 26, of Broadway, Somerville, who was being instructed in driving. Both cars overturned.

The injured included William Dooley, 24 Castleton rd., Jamaica Plain; Clara Martin, 6 Irving st., Cambridge; James Dudley and Barry St. George, Winsor st., Cambridge; Eugene Crowe, Stearns st., Waltham, and Miss Lowe. All were treated at Waltham Hospital. Miss Clark and Dooley remained at the hospital.

DANCER CLAIMS HER HUSBAND KIDNAPED 2

Pawtucket, R. I., July 26 (AP)—Frank T. Houston 31, formerly of Brooklyn, was arraigned here today, charged with being a fugitive from justice. Police said he was under indictment in Queens County, N. Y., on a charge of kidnaping his two children, Aleck, nine, and Ellen Jane, seven.

He was released in $1000 for appearance August 3.

Police believe the two children are in this city, but Houston refused to tell their whereabouts.

It was said Houston married Elsie McDonald, a stage dancer, who obtained a divorce at Chicago three months ago. Soon after this Houston was said to have taken the two children from their home and brought them here.

He said he did not know his wife had obtained a decree.

HELD IN EAST BOSTON KILLING

The Galdi shooting mystery was cleared up in East Boston court today when Nicholas S. Constantino, 21, of Sumner st., East Boston, admitted it was a bullet from his rifle that killed Mrs. Carilla Galdi, 55, of Webster st.

Mrs. Galdi was killed as she sat in her kitchen, several days ago.

In court, where Constantino was arraigned on charges of manslaughter and illegal discharge of firearms, he testified that while at target practice a shot went wild and tore through the screen in the Galdi kitchen. Then he ceased his practice, he said.

Constantino was held for the August term of the grand jury.

Police had been searching for him since the killing. He surrendered at police headquarters today and said he had been at Nantasket and on Cape Cod.

SEEK HUB GIRL IN MURDER

Boston police and detectives from Detroit today hunted a Boston girl, former Washington st. cafe waitress, wanted for questioning in connection with a robbery and murder in the Michigan city, recently.

Frank Wallace, alias Gustin, was identified in Municipal Court corridor by two Detroit persons in connection with the holdup, police announced. Wallace emphatically denied in connection with the Detroit case, and plans to battle against any effort to extradite him.

Police said they were hunting not only the former waitress, but also a "well known Boston gangster."

Gustin, or Wallace, had been arraigned on a charge in connection with a Boston jewelry robbery, and was being led back to a cell when he was seen by two employes of the Detroit News, whose business office was the scene of the oldup.

The holdup was made by forcing more than 200 clerks to throw up their hands at gunpoint. The bandits escaped out a payroll containing $11,000, shot a policeman dead [illegible] he entered the big office and [illegible] won out in a spectacular auto chase the length of Lafayette ave., one of the most traveled streets in the city.

WILL FIGHT EXTRADICTION

Frank Wallace, alias Frank Gustin, identified as one of the gang that staged the fatal Detroit News $14,000 holdup last month, will fight extradition to the auto city.

IDENTIFY WALLACE IN COURTROOM

E. Frederick Thornton, editorial secretary of the Detroit News, and Mrs. Isabelle Richardson, elevator operator, both identified Frank Wallace, alias Frank Gustin, as one of the robbers.

G. O. P. Seeking a Slogan

As the Elephant and Donkey Race

New York, July 26—A snappy Republican campaign slogan may be expected at any moment now. Col. George Harvey, publicist and perennial presidential political mentor, has enlisted for the period of the present campaign as an aide-de-camp of Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, Eastern field marshall for Herbert Hoover.

It was Col. Harvey who gave the Republicans the slogan "Coolidge or Chaos" in 1924.

In the meantime, the quick-witted Moses, who is no slough, as a coiner of words and a maker of phrases himself, has suggested an alliterative paraphrase of the 1924 slogan—"Hoover or Havoc."

New Bern, N. C., July 26 (AP)—Giving no reason for his action, Senator Furnifold M. Simmons, an outspoken opponent of Governor Smith has resigned as a member of the Democratic National Committee.

Senator Simmons had held a place on the committee since 1924 and for years has been recognized as a power in the Democratic party in this state. His resignation has been transmitted to Chairman John J. Raskob.

Superior, Wis., July 26—The middle of August will find President Coolidge and his party enjoying the glories of Yellowstone National Park, according to tentative arrangements.

Urged by Mrs. Coolidge and John to revisit the beautiful park where they had such an enjoyable time last summer, the President has tentatively decided to leave Cedar Island Lodge between the 10th and 15th of next month for a trip there.

He may remain only four or five days and then return here, or he may stay for a longer period and then go directly East to his boyhood home at Plymouth, Vt. The latter part of the plan has not yet been worked out by the family.

Atlanta, Ga., July 26 (AP)—An open letter warning Baptist ministers of Georgia to shun politics appeared today in the Christian Index over the signature of John D. Mell, president for 16 years of the Georgia Baptist convention.

Citing at the outset "three great issues" in the presidential campaign, Dr. Mell saw in them "enough dynamite to destroy the peace and harmony of any church . . . as our people are already divided on these questions."

New York, July 26—Another "big business" Republican has announced his support of Governor Smith. The latest Hoover bolter was William H. Woodin, president of the American Car and Foundry Company and the American Locomotive Company, and director in a dozen great industrial organizations.

In announcing the party switch made by the captain of industry, Chairman John J. Raskob of the Democratic national committee, disclosed that a fund of between $2,500,000 and $3,500,000 will be sought to place Governor Smith in the White House.

New York, July 26—Robert L. Owen, for 18 years Democratic U. S. Senator from Oklahoma, and Dr. David E. Mitchell, former president of Cumberland University and one of the most influential Democrats in Tennessee, have bolted Smith, and will back Hoover.

Both assert that not only Oklahoma and Tennessee but Kentucky and Missouri will cast their electoral votes for the Republican nominee. Owen and Mitchell declared also that they intend to do all they can to achieve this result.

Chairman George H. Moses is credited with bringing the pair to Republican headquarters.

Washington, July 26—Senator Charles Curtis, Vice-President Charles G. Dawes, ex-Secretary Charles E. Hughes and Senator Borah will constitute the "big four" of the Republican stump speaking campaign.

OF COURSE, WEATHER TOO GOOD TO LAST; IT'LL RAIN

A storm centered in Minnesota, accompanied by sporadic thunder showers, appeared as a threat today to mar the genial weather abounding in New England. Approach of the disturbance is scheduled to be marked tomorrow by cloudy skies and showers.

Forecast: Fair tonight; Friday increasing cloudiness with showers; not much change in temperature; moderate east to south winds.

GERMAN GLIDER OFF CAPE SETS U. S. RECORD

more closely resembling a box kite.

Today's demonstration was a revelation to the 300 spectators, the majority summer residents of the Cape, to whom the noiseless, soaring, swooping craft with its 60-foot wings appeared as a huge, but graceful bird.

EXCITED GIRL INJURED

One girl vacationist was so excited when the Darmstadt shot over the cliff at the Light that she leaped wildly into the air, dislocating one knee. It was treated by Dr. M. Coren.

For nearly two weeks the German glider experts have waited with more or less patience for favorable weather conditions.

The base of operations was changed from Corn Hill at Truro to the Highland Light Golf Club here, early today came the break that had long been hoped for. The wind shifted into the northeast, and at 8 o'clock was blowing 25 miles an hour.

Headed by Capt. Paul Roehre, the experts lost no time in preparing for a flight.

Pilot Hesselbach took his place at the controls and a squad of volunteers, coached for the past two days by Chief Petty Officer H. W. Moore, attached to the naval radio compass station here, manned the rubber cables.

NAVY MEN ASSIST

In addition to Moore, the volunteers were: Thomas Morgan, radio man at the compass station; A. G. Baker, Washington, D. C.; John Pierce, Somerville; Richard Loanbury, Everett; John L. Silva, Provincetown; John F. Guilfoyle, U. S naval compass station; Capt. T. Silva of the fishing schooner Dorothy and R. M. Pierce, Somerville.

Pilot Hesselbach, whistle in mouth, blew one blast, and the men holding the cables moved forward at a walk while others, including Dr. Paul Laubenthal, one of the gliders, and George Murray of Milton, held the plane on the ground.

At a second whistle signal the cable men broke into a run, and then the third blast was given. The cables were dropped, the other men released their hold on the plane, and th Darmstadt was catapulted smoothly into the air.

For 23 minutes Hesselbach swept up and down the seven-mile course and then back over the golf links. The cry went up: "He's going to land," and the crowd scattered.

Down came the ship as steadily as a motordriven craft, until within a foot of the ground, when Hesselbach snatched it up into the air again, soared out over the water and resumed his patrol of the seven-mile course until an hour was nearly consumed.

Then he swept back and brought the glider down to a perfect landing. Immediately there was a rush of girls who overwhelmed him with congratulations.

The first to seize his hand was Miss Virginia Knight of Orange, N. J. Hesselbach responded with a "Three cheers for Peter," which were given with a will.

Hesselbach said the chief reason he came down was because his left foot find gone to sleep owing to the cramped position in the cockpit.

Singer Accused

VERNON STILES

Grand opera tenor sued for divorce by wife, who names wife of millionaire copper man and demands $250,000 as price of lost love.

TENOR'S WIFE ASKS $25,000 AS LOVE BALM

Los Angeles, July 26 (AP)—Vernon Stiles, grand opera singer, today faced a divorce action and the allegation of his wife that he had abandoned domestic fidelity and the position his stage successes had given him, for a small real estate business and love making with Mrs. John R. MacGinniss, young wife of a Greenwich, Ct., copper magnate.

Mrs. Stiles, the former Hester Hoff of Buffalo, N. Y., concert pianist, brought the action yesterday together with a suit for $250,000 damages for alleged alienation of affections against Mrs. MacGinniss.

Mrs. Stiles, who became the tenor's second wife in 1923 after a vocal courtship, told in her complaint of indiscretions of her husband which included a rendezvous with Mrs. MacGinniss at Lake Arrowhead, Cal.

The complaint said Mrs. Stiles returned suddenly from an eastern trip, and found her husband's room strewn with a woman's garments. Subsequently she said she accompanied her attorney to Lake Arrowhead, where they discovered Mrs. MacGinniss in company with her husband.

Mrs. Theodore Parsons, a sister of Mrs. MacGinniss, declared the latter would fight the action, but J. S. Lewiston, Los Angeles attorney for the family, said they were "so silly as not to warrant an answer."

MacGinniss, prominent New York and Butte, Mont., banker and clubman, lost a United States senatorship in 1901 by only two votes, and later served as a Democratic national committeeman.

WILLIAM J. REARDON, HARDWARE MAN, DIES

William J. Reardon, prominent hardware dealer at 258 Franklin st., Boston, for the past 30 years, died at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital after an illness of a few weeks. He had planned to take an extended European tour and also to attend the Olympic games. He was taken sick shortly before sailing.

He was a life member of the Boston Lodge of Elks and past president of the Edwin Forrest Club. He is survived by a sister Catherine, and two brothers, Charles P. and Frank A., who was associated with him in business. Mr. Reardon will be buried from his brother's home at 7 Forest st., Dorchester, Saturday. A solemn high mass of requiem will be celebrated at St. Margarets church. Burial will be at Lawrence.

POLICE SEEKING BOY SPEEDER IN CHARLESTOWN

City and state today went after a new speed king of the Charlestown gang of boys whose wild auto dashes over Bunker Hill in stolen cars have caused nearly as much concern as did the redcoats on their historic visit.

Boston police in plain clothes launched one hunt for the speedster king, whose name is unknown, while Inspector Ludger Jodoin of the motor vehicle registrar's office started a search of his own.

After a long period of quiet, the speed mania reappeared in the flash of a big sedan with a boy at the wheel, which raced up and down Bunker Hill st. with police trying vainly to head it off. It was a stolen car and was later found abandoned.

"We had the gang all broken up, but this looks like the beginning of a new gang or the old one reorganized," said Inspector Jodoin.

"These boys are auto thieves and joy riders, recruited from the poolrooms and street corners along Bunker Hill st. They go in town, grab a fast car or two and come back to dash through the streets.

"One fellow starts the epidemic. His example makes the gang. All the boys try to follow his example and that gives them a community of interest. Then, after a while, a new king is crowned. The residents don't give us any help."

Like his predecessors, the new phantom speeder drove in daredevil fashion with utter disregard of other vehicles and pedestrians but with a keen eye for policemen.

Nations Will Sign Anti-War Pact in Paris Aug. 28

Paris, July 26 (AP)—The multilateral pact to outlaw war will be signed in Paris by Secretary Kellogg and the foreign ministers of the other signatory powers about August 28.

The French government's invitation to Kellogg to come is on its way to America, but it is understood at the Foreign Office that Ambassador Paul Claudel, as a result of his conversations with the American Secretary of State, has received in advance his definite promise to take part in the great occasion.

The twenty-eighth of August is a tentative date which may be advanced or delayed a day or two to suit the convenience of the states man.

'Stay Out of Limelight'

ILLINOIS COMMITTEE on
PUBLIC UTILITY INFORMATION
123 SOUTH CLARK STREET
CHICAGO

January 20, 1925.

Hon. J. T. Norman,
Missouri Committee on Public Utility Information,
8th Main Building,
St. Louis, Missouri.

My dear Norman:

Replying to your letter as to what plan the Committee pursued during the election of 1924 when the Utilities Commission was in issue, the Committee made every effort to stay out of the limelight and to utilize such agencies as seemed best and let them put up the fight. These included the Illinois Chamber of Commerce (composed of about ninety commercial clubs scattered throughout the state), the Western Society of Engineers, Investment Bankers' Association, and various other civic and professional organizations. The Illinois Chamber of Commerce took a referendum of its 30,000 members and they voted about 14 to 1 in favor of retaining the Commission. The other organizations got out matter — or maybe it is better stated that we prepared matter and they sent it out.

Of course, in addition to whatever distribution they gave such matter we made a very intensive distribution to a very extensive mailing list including mayors, members of councils, city and state officials, business men, etc. The Illinois Chamber of Commerce also held an open forum on the subject at the state capitol, both sides being invited to present views. No utility man appeared before that forum. Those who did appear included engineers, investment bankers and business men who presented the public and utility viewpoint rather than a prejudiced viewpoint such as might come from the utility man or which might be branded as 'utility'. Of course in the news bulletin we printed the news as it happened, and which is our privilege, but neither the Committee nor any utility association took a definite stand in the matter.

I am sending you, under separate cover, some of the matter we issued, which will give you a pretty good idea on what I have told you about in this letter. A considerable amount of the matter we issued has been exhausted since then the file copies, but this will be sufficient, I think, so that if you want to do anything it will give you a start.

At this time there is not the slightest move on the part of our legislature to disturb the Commission to my way, nor is there any opposition of it. That, to my mind, shows the effect of what we did, and of course since the commission of that we have completely carried matter relative to Commission legislation, nearing more valid the work that we did. This has been done in an unostentatious way and without attracting any attention.

Yours very truly,
H. M. Lytle

HAL:B

H. M. LYTLE, associate director of the power interests' propaganda committee in Illinois, here gives a fellow-propagandist in Missouri, and inadvertently the Federal Trade Commission, an account of the fight to save State regulation in Illinois. According to Lytle many organizations of prominence and high standing were "utilized" to serve the utilities' ends. Like the organized utilities throughout the country, those in Illinois are strong champions of State regulation of their service and rates. There is no longer any criticism of the State commission, Lytle says, and that "shows the effect of what we did." His letter is an official exhibit in the commission's investigation.

UTILITY TRUST 'TAMED' MANY

By M. L. RAMSAY

Washington, July 26 (Universal)—Power propagandists and the united utility interests behind them "tamed" many State Legislatures, blocking the introduction or passage of all bills they pronounced "inimical," confidential letters and reports in Federal Trade Commission files show.

Efforts to improve ineffective regulation of the utilities, force better service and lower rates, and require utilities to pay more taxes were stated as the aims of many of these measures.

E. W. Hodges, director of public relations for H. L. Doherty & Company, who had been director of the Arkansas Propaganda Bureau for several years, reported at a national meeting of propagandists in Atlantic City in October, 1925:

"Let me point this out. I know you have had some such experience. In our State a little over eight years ago our Legislature there had something like 104 anti-utility bills in our General Assembly.

"Two years after there were 80-odd bills—coming down a little it is true, but many of them were vicious, almost confiscatory in their principles. This last session we had a regular session. They met and adjourned in sixty days and they were grinding all they could.

"But not a single bill of all that were passed was proposed and would have been inimical or would be hurtful in any way to the public utilities of the State had it passed and received the governor's signature."

W. P. Strandberg, director of the Oregon Bureau, wrote in the same year to John B. Miller, president of the Southern California Edison Company:

"The electric industry of Pennsylvania through the agency of the Pennsylvania Public Service Information Committee has been doing tremendously effective work in counteracting the vicious propaganda of Governor Pinchot and his crowd.

"They were successful in defeating thirty of more legislative measures, which were fostered by the Pinchot gang at Harrisburg last winter, and they have secured the co-operation of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce in answering the Pinchot propaganda."

An American Gas Association representative told a meeting of Pennsylvania utility men in Philadelphia in 1923:

"In the State of Illinois this last year there has not been one single bill in the State Legislature militating against the utility interests. It has been the first time, I understand, in the history of the State that that has been the case, and the Illinois committee takes unto itself a fair proportion of the credit for keeping down that condition."

MAINE 'PORTIA' FREED; SOBS HALT GIRL'S TRIAL

Two little girls with the blues, one from the farm country of Sanford, Me., and the other from Concord sq., Boston, were arraigned in Chelsea today on charges preferred by Revere policewomen.

After acting as her own attorney, Sarah Riddle, 18, of Sanford, was found not guilty and agreed to go back to Maine, while the case of Susanne Burgess of Concord sq. was put over until tomorrow when she could not control her weeping.

Death in Pacific Coast Hot Spell; Mercury 114

Seattle Wash., July 26 (AP)—With one death and numerous prostrations credited to a four-day heat wave, the Pacific Northwest expected little relief from record-breaking temperatures today.

The highest temperature reported was 114 at Mabton, a Central Washington village. Other high Washington temperatures which were in general on a par with the preceding day, were: Walla Walla, 112; Union Gap, 112; Prosser, 111; Toppenish, 110; Yakima, 109.5, and Spokane, 104.3.

Other Pacific Northwest temperatures were: Grand Forks, B. C., 103; Baker, Ore., 100; Portland, 98; Olympia, Wash., 97; Victoria, B. C., 86; Seattle, 88; Vancouver, B. C., 82.

Utah and Idaho likewise sweltered in high temperatures ranging from 105 to 91 degrees. The highest reading was at Boise, Ida., where for the second successive day the mercury climbed to 105. Coeur D'Alene reported 103.

2 INDICTED IN 'SHAKEDOWN' IN RUM RAID

As a result of an alleged "shakedown" on Cape Cod, George E. Morse of Onset and Axel Basse of Wareham were arrested on seven indictments charged with impersonating federal prohibition agents. Morse was arraigned in federal court today and after pleading not guilty was held in $2,500. He was committed to jail because of inability to give bail. Bassett was to be arraigned later.

Morse was arrested in a house in Fayette st., South End, by Deputy United States Marshal Joseph Winston. Search of an automobile that officials say was claimed by Morse revealed a revolver, police handcuffs, police whistle and a United States internal revenue agent's badge, the authorities said.

According to Assistant United States Attys. John L. Walsh, Jr., Morse and Bassett on June 13 went to the home of Edward M. Gray in Yarmouth, where Bassett purchased liquor. Morse and Bassett, is alleged, put Gray in an automobile ostensibly to look him up.

During the ride, the government alleges, Morse told Gray if he would "come across" with $50 the charges would be dropped. Gray paid the government contends.

ARREST LEAVE N. Y. POLICE CHICKEN RANCH CUSTODIAN

New York, July 26 (AP)—The arrest of a man in Canada on a $152,000 embezzlement charge has left the New York police custodians of a British Columbia chicken ranch. A cablegram today from the British Columbia sheriff, who arrested William Pilkington, 28, former treasurer of the New York branch of Joshua Hoyle & Sons, Ltd., British cotton converters, brought this information.

Pilkington was found on a farm near Murrayville, B. CV., which he had purchased for $3000 cash. He is being held in the Murrayville jail until New York detectives arrive with extradition papers.

NORTHAMPTON GIRL, 10, KILLED BY HER COUSIN

Pottsville, Va., July 26 (AP)—Accidentally shot while playing, Florence, 10, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Casper of Northampton, Mass., died in a Pottsville hospital. She and and Henry Zajano, 10, her cousin, were playing at Rideview Inn, when Henry found a rifle. When he tried to remove the cartridge the gun was discharged.

GOBEILLE HAD $100,000 WHEN HE VANISHED

Worcester, July 26—Eugene L. Gobeille, missing Worcester contractor, had more than $100,000 in available funds when he disappeared two weeks ago, it was learned today.

It has been determined that in one Providence bank he had on deposit more than $40,000.

In addition, he was paid recently more than $60,000 in various checks for road construction work in Massachusetts and Connecticut.

The mystery of his disappearance was as deep as ever today and the Central building in Worcester remained the last place from which any definite report of him came.

Gobil made a payment on his car in that building at 2:30 on July 7. Then he vanished.

DICKINSON, OUSTED, TO GET PUBLIC HEARING

State Boiler Inspector Freeman D. Dickinson, removed by Commissioner Alfred F. Foote following unproved charges that liquor was removed from the State House, today asked for a public hearing.

Timothy C. Murphy, acting commissioner, said he will set a tentative date, subject to the return of Foote.

Beauty Expert Gets Hunch on 'Oaky'

By SLEEPYHEAD OAKY

You could have swooned me with a soft custard when I received a visitor today—a member of the kin, in fact—who had designs on explaining to me just how I got into a log some years ago, and became a livecak-mattress voter.

The visitor was brought in by Joe Russo, versatile twister of ladies' hair—but in a beauty-parlor way.

Imagine my embarrassment when Joe-of-the-curlers-and-tongs informed me blithely that the big four-foot turtle accompanying him was de-funct and that it got that way through being shot in the eye by Russo himself at Lost Lake, Groton.

It seems that the big mud turtle had endeavored to obtain nourishment off Joe's big toe. So Joe swam back to his camp, got out his trusty 45-caliber pistol and plasted the turtle in the eye.

That's where my explanation went—and so today I am forced to turn again to mere human explanations relative to my having gained entrance to the center of a live oak log that was submerged for 73 years in a Florida lake.

The Boston Evening American is offering $10 for the best explanation of how I got into the log, and the letters are pouring in daily.

Phyllis Kotz of 19 Poquot rd., Quincy, enlisted the services of her brother in thinking out an explanation, and has arrived at the conclusion that the egg from which I crawled many years ago must have dropped into a wee crevice in the oak log and there have been hatched.

Oh! Well!

There are hundreds of other explanations received. But there is room for hundreds of others. Haven't you one? You are? Well —send it in!

Incidentally, I am nominated to be the mascot of the reconstructed U. S. Frigate Constitution, for which the log that was my home was being sliced and trimmed when I was found.

The judges of the letters will be Rear Admiral Phillip Andrews, commandant of the Boston Navy Yard; Lieut. John Lord U. S. N., in charge of the Constitution reconstruction work, and Prk Commissioner William P. Long. Address your letters to "Sleepyhead Oaky," Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

AUTO ACCIDENT BLAME SHIFTS GUILT

By FRANK A. GOODWIN
Highway Safety Editor Boston Evening American and Former Registrar of Motor Vehicles for Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Hundreds of times I have been asked by earnest citizens what they could do to make our highways safe.

"Will the Registrar pay any attention to us as private citizens if we complain on bad operators?" The answer is: "He most certainly will."

Frank A. Goodwin

There has been established for years in the Automobile Registry Department a complaint division with from five to eight girls handling complaints from thousands of citizens. In each case a letter is sent to the person complained of either asking for an explanation or carrying a warning.

In each case a white filing card is made out and filed in the same file with blue cards which are complaint cards from inspectors and state police.

They are also in the same file with buff colored cards sent to the Registry by the courts.

BLAME OTHER FELLOW

In other words, complaints made by citizens are filed with complaints by police and court records. Whenever a complaint is against a person who has a bad record in this file a license may be suspended. Of course, the trouble with complaints by citizens, is the fact that the person most at fault may complain first, and lie about the other operator.

Civil suits follow most accidents where damages occur, and the most natural thing for a person involved is to blame the other fellow.

It is surprising how many accidents happen where each operator is honestly certain that the other man was at fault and no blame attached to himself. In a large number of these cases, especially at intersections, both operators were at fault.

ENCOURAGE REPORTS

It is therefore dangerous for the Registrar to take action against one private citizen on the say-so of another. When the card file shows an accumulation of complaints and violations, investigations are in order and in most cases, it turns out the complaint is justified and the driver really is a "bad actor."

In 1920 the Safe Roads Federation was organized and for years it has worked in cooperation with the Registrar's office. Complaints have been made by members and forwarded to the Registry. This organization has thousands of members and is a branch of the Massachusetts Safety Council. Any citizen or group of citizens that report bad operators should be encouraged.

Woman Hurt by Taxi

Miss Mary Flaherty, 50, of 72 Tudor st., South Boston, was knocked down by a taxicab operated by Isadore Goren of Cambridge st., West End, as she was crossing the street in front of 118 Federal st. today. At the Haymarket Relief Station she was found to be suffering from a torn ligament of the left leg and injuries to the left eye.

ENGINEERS QUIT WAGE PARLEY IN BRITAIN

London, July 26 (AP)—Conferences between representatives of railway workers' organizations and employers on proposed reductions in wages to meet depressed financial conditions have struck several snags. The latest is withdrawal of the representatives of the locomotive engineers. This leaves the National Union of Railwaymen and the Railway Clerks' Association alone in conference, which adjourned until tomorrow.

ONE-ARMED VETERAN FINED IN DEDHAM SCHOOL FIGHT

In spite of having lost an arm in the World War, Walter E. Parker of Dedham fought for his favorite in the school dispute in that town. He was fined $5 today in Dedham court at which Chester A. Cook, call fireman and nephew of Dr. Frederick B. Grant, chairman of the school committee. They were charged with mutual assault. Both appealed. Parker was also found guilty of profanity and the case was placed on file. The dispute in Dedham school affairs, as well as between Cook and Parker, is over dismissal of Thomas S. Foley as principal of two schools. Parker is vice-president of the Teacher-Parents association.

Los Angeles Safe at Base

Lakehurst, N. J., July 26 (INS)—The United States navy dirigible Los Angeles returned to its base at the naval air station here early today from its flight to Oneida, N. Y., where a new municipal airport was dedicated.

DORCHESTER BOYS LEAD IN SHOOT AT MAINE CAMP

Fort McKinley, Me., July 26—Four Boston boys who are students at the Citizens' Military Training camp here, have won places among the 10 best shots of Company F, according to figures compiled by officers under direction of Col. John W. Wright, C. M. T. C. commander. Augustine J. Daley of 117 Park st., Dorchester, was the high scorer of the company, making 98 out of a possible 100. Other Dorchester boys with scores above 85 were: Albert Harkin, 35 Harewood st., 90; Joseph V. Reidy, 36 St. Margaret st., 89; John Leonard, 17 Van Winkle st., 88.

UNLICENSED FLIER AND GIRL PASSENGER KILLED

Elkhorn, Wis., July 26 (AP)—Cyril Burton, 26, Chicago, and Edith Gates, 18, Williams Bay, Wis., were killed south of here when Burton's plane went into a tail spin and fell 500 feet. Burton was an unlicensed pilot.

WOMAN MARCHES 'MASHER' INTO POLICEMAN'S HANDS

When a man accosted Mrs. Mary Abbaid of Berkeley st., she grasped him by the arm and walked him to a policeman, according to her testimony in Roxbury court today, where her vivid manner of telling it caused even Judge Hayden to laugh, and resulted in a finding of guilty against Abraham Sobol of Ottawa st., Roxbury.

Mrs. Abbaid is much larger than the man she "arrested." Sobol was fined $20.

ONE KILLED, THREE HURT IN MANCHESTER CRASH

Manchester, N. H., July 26 (AP)—Doris Tremblay, three, was killed and her brother George, five, and mother, Mrs. Alphonse Tremblay, were probably fatally injured here today when their automobile collided with a truck driven by Alvin C. Getz.

Mr. and Mrs. Tremblay and their six children were starting on a day's outing when the accident occurred. None of the others was injured.

1500 IN PERIL AS SHIP HITS ROCK IN ARCTIC

Oslo, Norway, July 26 (AP)—Having struck a rock in Bell Sound, Spitzbergen, the German motorship Monte Cervantes, with 1500 passengers aboard, including two Americans, was stated in wireless messages to be in no immediate danger today.

Standing by was the Russian ice-breaker Krassin, which rushed to the aid of the Monte Cervantes when SOS calls were sent out by the German vessel. The Krassin was about to go to Norway for repairs to damage received in battering her way through the ice floes to rescue seven survivors of the Italia disaster when the appeal for aid was broadcast.

The Monte Cervantes was on a tour of the Spitzbergen region. When the vessel struck the rock water entered two of its bulkheads. These were being pumped out today.

A diver from the Krassin was lowered into the Arctic waters to examine the damage to the German vessel. It is probable the Krassin will stand by for two days.

FIFTY BATTLE POLICE IN N. Y. NIGHT CLUB

New York, July 26 (AP)—"Julius", well known Greenwich Village night club and restaurant, where the village intelligentsia was wont to eat and think, or, as police contend, sit and drink, was raided early today and 25 men and 15 women were arrested.

The frequenters were charged with disorderly conduct and held at the Charles St. Police Station for a hearing. The promoter, Walter Anderson, 32, and a waiter, John Murphy, 50, were charged with violation of the Volstead act.

Detective discussions were going on when seven headquarters detectives announced everyone was under arrest. This abrupt interruption of the intimate conversations aroused a murmuring against the invaders which shortly turned to physical combat.

The detectives, however, quickly quelled the disturbance and started to load the men and women into six waiting patrol wagons.

While the exodus was underway someone threw the switch extinguishing the electric lights and once again a battle ensued. Many of the villagers and detectives were somewhat battered in the melee that followed.

Robber Cool, Calm and Collected, But Bad Man at That

Philadelphia, July 25 (AP)—While nearly 100 persons strolled by and as others lounged in the lobby of the Benjamin Franklin Hotel today a lone robber held up Mrs Grace Malone the woman manager of the information bureau, in her office and made off with $1000 off the hotel's supplementary payroll.

After pocketing the cash, the robber, soft spoken and dapper, walked past attendants, house detectives, pages and bellhops. He made his exit on Chestnut st. and getting into his motor drove off, with a traffic officer and a mounted policeman standing nearby.

U. S. AGREES TO TREATY WITH NEW CHINA

Washington, July 26 (AP)—Satisfied that a "new and unified" nation is emerging from the chaos and civil war that for years have held China in an iron grip, the United States is ready to negotiate a new tariff treaty with the Nationalist Government, according to it thereby a finding de facto recognition.

This was made known with the publication at the State Department of a note addressed to the Nationalist minister of foreign affairs, authorizing Minister MacMurray to represent the United States in drawing up the proposed compact.

Reaffirming the attitude of the Washington Government toward China, the communication declared that the United States welcomes "every advance made by the Chinese people toward unity, peace and progress."

FOR RECIPROCITY

The United States does not believe in interfering in China's internal affairs, it continued, and asks only what is expected "from every nation which we maintain friendly intercourse, specifically proper and adequate protection of American citizens, their property and their lawful rights, and, in general, treatment in no way discriminatory as compared with the treatment accorded to the interests or nations of any other country."

The Washington government asserted that it expects the proposed treaty to give full expression, "reciprocally, to the principle of national tariff autonomy and to the principle that the commerce of each of the contracting parties shall enjoy in the ports and territories of the other treatment in no way discriminatory as compared with the treatment accorded to the commerce of any other country.

SUGGESTED BY CHINA

The note revealed that a new tariff treaty was suggested by the Nationalists in a communication transmitted to Secretary Kellogg on July 11 by Dr. C. C. Wu, the representative of the Nationalist government here. Several months before Secretary Kellogg had said that the United States was willing to enter into tariff negotiations with any government that "could represent or speak for China."

Together with the establishment of the joint commission for settlement of claims arising from the Nanking incident, the note was interpreted as according to the Nationalist government recognition of a limited de facto form.

It was pointed out, however, that if the negotiations result in the mutual ratification of a treaty giving China autonomy over rates to be charged on imported articles, the Nationalist regime will thereby be given virtually complete recognition.

WIFE TELLS AND IS SLAIN WITH HAMMER

Wilkes Barre, Pa., July 26 (AP)—Frank P. Slattery, attorney for Dr. Harry Hoffman, charged with the murder of his wife, issued a statement saying he had withdrawn from the case. The statement says:

"I dislike very much to have any personal publicity at the expense of this unfortunate young man. While in Alderman Frank B. Brown's office this morning on another matter a state policeman in whom we have every confidence, told Alderman Brown and myself that the accused had confessed to the crime. That the substance of the confession was that while the accused and his wife were lying in bed they talked about the wife's condition and that an arrival was expected in the family.

"That the accused expressed the desire that it would be a boy. That the wife informed him that he, the accused, was not the father. That this started an altercation. That subsequently the accused in great anger left the bed, and first went to the bath room where he smoked a cigarette.

"Then he went downstairs and armed himself with a hammer. He went back to the bedroom with this instrument and took her life with repeated blows. That subsequently he burned the hammer in the furnace in the basement. That the wooden handle was consumed in the fire and that he threw the iron portion of the hammer somewhere in the basement.

"Assuming the truth of the officer's statement, I told the accused's friends that there was evidently no necessity for a trial lawyer in the case and advised that their money be returned and that they should await developments.

"Our experience is that sometimes these confessions, obtained from an accused after solitary confinement for several days and nights, are not entirely voluntary, but are made simply to be relieved from the strain."

HOOVER STRONG FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE

Palo Alto, Cal., July 26 (INS)—Herbert Hoover will announce a foreign policy during the coming campaign as definitely pro-American as to stamp him a Roosevelttian American, with only the interests of his country at heart, it was learned today on excellent authority.

Accused of being an internationalist, an Anglophile and an American who knew his country only from car windows, Hoover will declare himself strictly for a foreign policy supporting and protecting American sovereignty in international affairs.

During the campaign, he will amplify his statements, so that his position will be clear to all the voters by election time. His views on international affairs were reported reliably to be as follows:

NATIONAL DEFENSE

National defense—Hoover stands for a strong national defense, powerful enough to defend her against all enemies, in time of war, he believes in the drafting of all resources and regulation of prices to prevent profiteering.

Foreign Debts—Hoover stands opposed to the cancellation of America's foreign debts. He believes the terms laid down by America were fair to the debtor nations.

World Court—Hoover believes the World Court is a useful international tribunal and he feels there is no danger to American sovereignty in the terms laid down by the Senate which the member nations have never accepted.

FOR MONROE DOCTRINE

Monroe Doctrine—Hoover is a firm believer in the Monroe Doctrine and feels the United States should enforce it at all times. He believes in the protection of American lives and property abroad, but even more in the promotion of friendly relations with weaker nations in the Western Hemisphere.

League of Nations—Hoover looks on the League of Nations as an important international institution which the American Government should encourage and with which it should co-operate, but without sacrificing American sovereignty in the least.

Immigration—Hoover stands for restricted immigration but feels the law should be modified to make its application humane.

Peace Treaties—Hoover believes the way to world peace is through the development of peaceful international commerce. He favors the pending anti-war treaties.

HUB GIRL TAKES POISON IN N. Y.

New York, July 26—A blonde girl identified as Vera Elichorn of Boston was found unconscious in a room in the Herald Sq. Hotel today with brown stains about her mouth. Nearby lay a half-emptied iodine vial.

William Hendrickson, manager of the hotel, found the girl and notified the police. She was sent to Believue Hospital, where it was said she had swallowed a quantity of the poison and was in a serious condition.

Hendrickson said the girl had been in the hotel about six weeks. He knew no reason why she should attempt to take her life.

U. S. S. MARBLEHEAD DUE FROM CHINA WAR ZONE

Returning from a long trip during which she has made practically all of the river trips in the Chinese war zones, the U. S. S. Marblehead, sister ship of the Raleigh, is due at the Charlestown Navy Yard today, under command of Capt. Capps. The Marblehead, which left Boston more than a year ago, has been stationed in Chinese waters most of the intervening time.

LEVIATHAN WILL NOT LEAVE HUB UNTIL SUNDAY

Because of the fact that dredging operations are in progress in the North River near her New York pier and will not be completed till week, the steamer Leviathan, now in drydock at South Boston, will not leave Friday, as scheduled. Her departure has now been set for Sunday morning. She will reach New York on Monday morning and makes her first sailing to Cherbourg and Southampton on Saturday, August 4.

ARREST AUTOIST IN DEATH OF MAN STRUCK JUNE 15

Harold A. Reardon, 23, of 378 Beach st., Wollaston, was arrested as an alleged hit-and-run driver, last night, by Quincy police, who claim that he was driving the automobile which struck and fatally injured James McLeod, 52, of Farrington st., Wollaston, on the Beals at bridge on the evening of June 15.

Reardon is charged with manslaughter and driving so as to endanger life.

FAMOUS HOTEL OF SPRINGFIELD TO CLOSE

Springfield, July 26—The Cooley Hotel will be closed on August 6, and with its closing a traditional name will pass from the city's records. On May 1, 1929, the new Hotel Charles will open on the site of the old Cooley, according to Arthur J. Sheen, manager. Construction is already underway on the new building.

BOY LOSES LIFE AS HE WADES IN KENNEBEC

Augusta, Me., July 26—Carleton, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lefford Robbins of this city, was drowned in the Kennebec river yesterday afternoon. He had been bathing with several boy companions and waded beyond his depth. The body has not been recovered.

Autoist Who Judges Self Unfit to Drive Pays $20 Fine

"Because he judged himself unfit to drive a car and voluntarily turned in his license, Richard C. Thompson, 28, of Cohasset, drew a nominal fine today in Municipal court for driving so as to endanger the lives of the public.

Thompson was arrested June 30, after a crash at Brookline st. and Shawmut ave., South End, that sent Max Milder of Roxbury and James P. Farrell of Jamaica Plain to the hospital.

"Two days after the accident I ran into a pole that I didn't see," he told the court.

"Immediately I consulted an eye specialist and found that my sight was failing. Then I turned in my license to Registrar Parker."

A fine of $20 was imposed when the court was forced to a guilty finding.

Belasco 69, 70 or 71

New York, July 26 (AP)—David Belasco feels like 21, so what difference does his age make on his birthday; he is 69, 70 or 71, he doesn't know which. "As time goes on," he say, "I grow fonder of work and increase my capacity for it. I find life very beautiful."

UNITED DRUG CONVENTION ENDS TODAY

A day crowded with business sessions and entertainment marks the close today of the Silver Jubilee Convention of the United Drug Company, which has been in progress here since last Monday.

The program for the day opened with a business session for the men, with lunch at the Arena at noon. Meanwhile the women were enjoying a motor ride to places of historical interest.

The climax of the convention will come tonight with the ball at the Copley Plaza Hotel, where an elaborate program will be presented. Among the features will be an All-star program of entertainers, but the big feature will be the cutting and serving of a 2300 pound cake, which has been baked especially for this 25th anniversary of the forming of the United Drug Company.

The entertainment program will feature a battle of music between the Philadelphia Ramblers, fresh from their success at the $1,000,000 Atlantic City Pier, and Myer Davis' Washington orchestra.

Other features are Neal and Brown, whistlers; three Hottentots, Dusky Dixie Steppers; Moran, Warner and Margie in College Comedy; Bernor Brothers and Sisters in "What Next"; Foley and Letour, crazy bits of nonsense; Brems, Fitz and Murphy Brothers in "What Have You" and the Variety Septette.

SKINNY MEN

Jellyfish hands

"Tom's shaking hands with Simpson!" "Yes. Ever shake hands with Simpson yourself? It feels like picking up a pudding . . . you understand why he's never had pep enough to hold a job long."

Yet Simpson had tried often enough to brace up and get himself into better shape. Tried using the whole range of ordinary laxatives; health foods that took weeks to act—cathartics that wracked the system . . .

Feen-a-mint is different!

It's just like a bit of delicious chewing gum: You don't swallow it—you chew it!

Its magic laxative principle is released slowly, the way science meant it to be released. It actually becomes part of the digestive fluids—does not disturb digestion. It works with the body—not against it!

It won't torture you with griping pains. It won't poison or weaken the system. It won't enslave you to laxative pills. Get Feen-a-mint at your druggist's. Correct constipation—now!

PHELPS-THORNDIKE BRIDAL FOR SEPTEMBER

Wedding to Be Brilliant Bar Harbor Event

SCARCELY HAVE THE WEDDING BELLS OF June died down on the summertime air than brides of the autumn are ready to step forth into the social calcium. Important nuptials loom interestingly on the September horizon, and brides and their plans occupy the attention of milliners, modistes, caterers and throngs of relatives and friends. Wedding bells that peal for Miss Isabel Thorndike, even though they resound in faraway Bar Harbor up on Mt. Desert in Maine, will awaken echoes in several fashionable centers hundreds of miles away. Particularly in Boston, where pater and mater, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hill Thorndike, have their social beings in the highest fashionable stratum.

A LOVELY BOSTONIAN, INTIMATE OF THE bride-elect, will very materially enhance the measure of feminine charm in the bridal entourage. No bride could choose a prettier attendant than Miss Katharine Cunningham Gray, a Younger Set beauty. Miss Gray goes up to Bar Harbor soon to take in the pre-wedding festivities and dabble a bit in Bar Harbor's brilliancy. There is also in the Thorndike family a pretty sub-debutante, Miss Winifred, to be a bride attendant, and Mrs. Charles Delafield (Helen Thorndike), herself scarcely over the honeymoon span, for an honor matron.

A RESORT WEDDING, SPECIALLY IN SUCH A charming town as Bar Harbor, with its encircling mountains and its blue and sparkling ocean, offers a wealth of picturesque detail entirely lacking when the wedding spectacle is ceremoniously done in town. The Thorndikes have a large estate at the very smart and very exclusive Maine resort, and no place could more delightfully stage a wedding reception done al fraseo. So, even though regrets are heard that Miss Thorndike and Mr. Z. Bennett Phelps do not have a town nuptial, there are many compensating points.

AMBASSADORIAL EMINENCE GILDS CERTAIN leaves that flutter on the Phelps family tree. In the paternal line two great-uncles have represented these United States at foreign courts, the late John J. Phelps as ambassador to the Court of St. James, and William E. Phelps at the German Court when crowned heads and royal pomp held forth there. Immediate forbears of the bridegroom-elect are Colonel and Mrs. Z. Bennett Phelps of Binghamton. He is a Yale man, graduate of the Scientific School, and in winning a prominent Boston girl is following the lead set brilliantly by other intercity alliances.

TO SEE A YOUNG KINSMAN MARRIED WAS the pleasant errand taking Mrs. Sewall H. Fessenden and her pretty golden-haired daughter, Miss Louise Fessenden, to England. Traveling "everywhere," now that the nuptials are over, is their present occupation, and so for several weeks they are seeing the sights and doing all the usual things

AN ARDENT TENNIS DEVOTEE

Miss Agnes Boardman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Boardman, is frequently seen at the Essex County Club during tennis tournament week.

the wealthy leisured class does abroad. George Lee, Jr., was the young bachelor, now benedict, whose marriage to Miss Kathleen Sloddart in England was the occasion taking a large company of friends and relatives over the sea. Mr. and Mrs. Lee are to live in England, where enormous banking interests have the young man's business attention.

I SAW ANOTHER FESSENDEN daughter Mrs. Frederick Wadsworth Rusk, in the smart throng that turned out at Essex County Club for Miss Helen Wills yesterday. Mrs. Rusk accomplished the almost impossibility of looking cool and smart given in the warm sun that pelted down on the gallery. Her prints frock and her wide rough straw hat were the essence of midsummery coolness. Miss Betty Moulton's pale pink frock was just the thing for a sunny afternoon in the gallery. Miss Helen Rust's golden-brown frock was in tone with her softly-colored straw chapeau.

ALL IN WHITE, MRS. HAROLD JEFFERSON COOLIDGE viewed the tennis. Mrs. George Whitney and Mrs. Henry Minot had places together as Miss Wills, Miss Sears and their partners dashed through some spirited play. Mrs. Russell Codman arrived just as the doubles were finishing. Little Joanna Palfrey, smallest of the Palfrey tennis phenomenons, was an interested spectator. Little Miss Joanna plays tennis herself, and one day intends to be another Sarah or Mianne. Beneath cloudless skies the invitation tournament proceeds with utmost smoothness, thanks to the guidance of Harvey Bundy and George Weld, who each day are arduously on duty.

EQUINES ALONG THE SOUTH SHORE are not permitted to just browse in sunny pastures, or trot leisurely along leafy lanes these July days. Life for the four-footed ones, those with show ring pretensions and manners, is a round of energetic training. They are being groomed to the last glistening hair and "schooled" for the South Shore's big mid-August horse event, the Cohasset Show. Socially, a summer horse show is enormously important. Numerically, the annual show increases in leaps and bounds. As to its importance in the world of the horse, its prestige grows greater each season.

IT IS IN FACT A FLOURISHING young thing. Its years are but three, if birthdays celebrated since a long lapse (following the war) are the only ones counted. All the prominent people along Cohasset way who have stables and maintain a string of horses come out. And every youngster who owns a pony or can borrow one of the shaggy creatures will be in the ring.

Equine Stars are Groomed for Show at Cohasset

Young Cohasset rides as intensely as it swims or sails, and parents applaud their efforts. And this season, so many ponies and so many children are in the offing, a whole day is added to Horse Show schedule for the younglings and their mounts alone.

MRS. WILLIAM GAGNEBIN owns some fine horses and, true to her Mandell origin, is an ardent horsewoman. She takes a leading part in the show's arrangements and is putting her "Golden Arrow" into the lists. Some high steppers from the Baneroft stables will doubtless take the judges' eyes, and consequently be rewarded with sundry blues and reds. A two-day show is sufficiently important to bring to Cohasset many blue-ribboners, and entries are piling up each day with that veteran show arranger, Mr. Livesey, whose bugle has tooted at horse shows this many a year.

BIG DAY SLATED FOR DEVENS

Camp Devens, July 26—Tomorrow will be the camp's big day. Maj.-Gen. Charles P. Summerall, scheduled to appear for his review today, has changed his plans, and will be here tomorrow instead, his visit coinciding with that of Governor Fuller, so that the army chief's annual inspection will have an added importance from the presence of the governor.

For excellence in topography, Richard Plunkett of Watertown has been awarded a gold medal, the presentation taking place at the evening parade of the C. M. T. C. Clarence J. Carr of Worcester, a student first sergeant, won a gold medal for being high point scorer in the field and track meet recently.

MARINE FLIERS BOMB REBELS

Managua, Nicaragua, July 26 (AP)—American marine fliers were believed today to have inflicted a number of casulties on the bodyguard of Gen. Augustino Sandino, insurgent leader.

Three of the five planes which sought out the insurgent position near the Honduran border were struck by rifle and machine gun fire. The damage was not considered serious.

The marines met the attack with machine guns, rifles and bombs, observers in the largest camp.

The air squadron was led by Maj. Ross E. Rowel, chief of the marine air service in Nicaragua.

U. S. SCOTSMEN GREETED BY CLANS IN IRELAND

Moville, County Donegal, Ireland, July 26 (AP)—Rousing Scottish cheers and skirling pipes today greeted 1000 clansmen from the United States when they transferred here from the liners Caledonia and Transylvania to the steamer Waverly. The demonstration was a foretaste of the welcome at Glasgow. It was given by a committee of 100 clan representatives who came here on a tender from Derry. An official reception will be given by the Glasgow municipality tomorrow.

INDIA'S PRINCES END CONFERENCE IN LONDON

London, July 26 (AP)—The greatest gathering of India's native princes in London since the coronation of King George adjourned today until the October conferences with the Indian states' committee. They have been trying to work out more satisfactory political, financial and economic relationships between India and the native states.

HUNT 3 YOUTHS IN SARNI BOY SLAYING

Three youths, who a year ago fell under police surveillance, were sought today for questioning in connection with the killing of Michael Sarni, 16, of Revere, in a Saugus barn.

Police also were hunting a Revere man reported to have left the city the latter part of last week while Sarni was dying in Lynn hospital. The missing man left behind him a wife and several children.

The three youths sought were seen several days ago, according to the police, in a horse-drawn vehicle in Saugus.

This was on the day the Sarni boy was injured. Since then no trace has been found of the trio.

A year ago the three youths were driven out of town after a series of small store robberies for which they fell under suspicion.

A young man captured yesterday near the barn of E. Maxwell Hatch, Saugus Overseer of the Poor, where the Sarni boy was found unconscious and dying, was released from police custody today.

The captive convinced police he was examining the barn merely out of curiosity and had nothing to do with the death.

Hatch, who was employer of the Sarni boy, is still under police guard at his home. He says threats have been made against his life.

BRIDAL COUPLE HELD IN PLANE, AUTO THEFTS

A petite and wistful little bride was arraigned today in Brookline, charged with stealing an automobile through whose sale she hoped to raise money enough to obtain the release of her husband, now in jail for stealing an airplane.

All very complicated.

The bride—according to her own story—is Mrs. Gene McCord, alias C. McLean, daughter of a bank president in a southern town, and wife of H. Carroll McCord, World War aviator who "borrowed" the plane to convey the bride East from California.

It was a non-stop flight and didn't get into the papers, according to the girl's narrative to the police.

After waiving examination and pleading not guilty, the girl was held in $2500 for the Grand Jury in default of bail she was remanded to Dedham Jail.

Specifically, she is charged with obtaining a high-powered car, valued at $1900, from a Brookline dealer, in payment for which she gave two checks.

Explaining the checks, she said she did not wish her father to know she was spending so much money.

The checks came back from a Boston bank stamped "no account."

After a search, the bride, who is 27, but who appears to be not over 17, was arrested in Port Huron, L. I., and was taked to Brookline by Inspector John Donovan.

She told police her father was a bank president but she refused to name the town in the South she claims as her home. Her husband, according to her story, was an aviation lieutenant during the war and was decorated for valor overseas.

They were married last February and he had to come East. Overcome by his desire to see her, the bride said, he "borrowed" a plane from a New York field, flew to California and then carried her back through the air in a non-stop flight.

For his "borrowing" of the plane was arrested and was sent to prison camp at Comstock, N. Y.

GOOD GIRL

By ROY L. FOLEY

Can a Girl Have Too Much Feminine Appeal?

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Nancy Deane, golden-haired, dark-eyed, who has lived with Margaret and Darry O'Day in Worcester fall her life, discovers she is the granddaughter of the wealthy Montgomery Deanes of Boston and Brookline. She loves the O'Days, but decides to go to Boston. John Blair, whom she has met by accident and whom she has grown to admire, gives her a letter to Howard Wescott of a Boston mill. Blair has taken her to the circus where she sees her mother, Julie Abbott, fatally hurt. Julie dies in the hospital leaving the girl she deserted 18 years before proofs of her identity. Nancy runs into Ginger Varden, on the train, a slangy good hearted model, who takes her to her own room and introduces her to her friends, among them Vic Flemming and Jerry Durant. The former goes mad over her blond beauty and starts a fight at a studio party. Nancy meets Wescott at the party and realizes he is the man to whom John's letter is addressed. He gives her a job, but Ginger begs her to try modelling instead of sorting socks in a factory. The young men call again and Vic kisses Nancy who bursts into sobs. He quiets her and the four go on another party. John Blair sees her at dinner and she tries to explain her friends.

(Now go on with the story.)

CHAPTER 18

"WHO'S the big shark?" Ginger asked as soon as John Blair turned from Nancy, so loudly that he must have heard her. If he did he gave no sign and hurried out of the dining room without a glance behind.

"That's what I say. Who's the big he-man brute?" Jerry added. "Is that one of the home boys? Looks like Gene Tunney, eh, Vic?"

Vic Flemming was angry. His scowl and the manner in which he was nervously folding and unfolding his napkin told more plainly than words that he resented Nancy's cordial greeting of John Blair, and the way she had talked to him, looking straight up into his face, half pleading.

It flashed through Nancy's mind that her manner with John must have looked suspicious to anyone who didn't know what she was saving. Vic Flemming thought she was flirting, giving him "baby talk," the vamp stuff, as Vic would put it. The thought came to her that even though she were flirting, it was none of Vic's business.

Again she was feeling a new sensation welling up in her heart. Every hour, it seemed, she was discovering she was capable of new feelings, that she had to make decisions, think for herself as she had never had to think before.

Vic grabbed her by the wrist. "Sit down," he commanded.

Nancy snatched her hand away. Her own eyes were flashing now. The little gold glints in them began to shine. They always did when her "dander was up," Darry O'Day often said.

"Vic Fleming, what do you mean?" she demanded.

"I mean just this," he said between his teeth, "I mean that I'm not going to have you flirting with any big bimbo while you're out with me. You're my girl when you're with me, understand, and if there's any cooing to be done in any guy's face, it's my face that gets it. See? I'm your papa tonight and I want you to remember it."

Nancy had never had anyone talk to her like this before. She opened her mouth to defend herself against the insulting of his anger, but no words would come.

"Why, Vic Fleming—"

"Don't let him bluff you, Goldie Locks," Ginger broke in.

"You keep out of this!"

Vic turned in Ginger, his face getting redder and redder as his anger increased.

Nancy didn't know whether to cry or to fight. The people at other tables were staring at them. She bit her lip. She decided she was through with crying if ever she was to get along in this amazing new world into which she had been hurled so suddenly.

"Vic Fleming, please listen!"

Her own face was red now. She jumped to her feet and flung her napkin down on the table. It looked as though she meant business.

"That man I was just talking to is a very dear friend of mine and of my family. He's going back to Worcester tonight and I asked him to do me a favor. What it is has nothing to do with you. It's none of your affair. I wasn't flirting with him. I'm not in the habit of flirting with men in public dining rooms. Another thing, I don't know what you mean by being my papa tonight. You're not my papa and no one else is. I——"

"Hooray for Goldie Locks. She HAS got spunk. Who'd a-thought it!" Jerry laughed, and reached over to pat Nancy on the back. Nancy's

YANKEE ENVOY LEAPS INTO SEA; SAVES WOMAN

Constantinople, July 26 (AP)—Joseph G Grew, American ambassador, jumped from a ferry into the swift waters of the Bosphorus and rebound an aged, veiled Turkish woman who had thrown herself overboard.

Despite the efforts of the ambassador Grew has played a hero's role in Turkey and the streets and Turkish press are ringing with his praises.

In the previous instance the ambassador found two Turkish girls in a smashed automobile on a country road. His prompt rescue and transportation of them to a hospital was greatly praised at the time.

300 WABASH RAILROAD MEN VISITING BOSTON

Three hundred representatives of the Wabash railroad are visiting Boston today, and made a tour of Boston Harbor, leaving from the piers of the Nantucket Beach steamboat Company. This evening they are to have a New England clambake at the beach. They will return to Boston on the 7.15 boat so that they may take part in the moonlight sail of Boston Harbor.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SECOND SECTION

A HOME PAPER FOR THE PEOPLE WHO THINK

BOSTON, THURSDAY, JULY 26, 1928

POLICE 'GET' BODENHEIM

'OUR GANG' ENTRIES GAIN FAST

Enter NOW!

This should be the slogan of all New England children who have not yet entered the Boston Evening American's "Our Gang" resemblance contest, as only two days remain after today in which to do so.

Midnight of next Saturday is the closing hour. It is fair warning, mothers, so if the mail containing your child's picture does not bear a postmark of midnight Saturday or before, it will not be considered.

The six New England children who will be candidates for first prize of a three-months' trip to California and salary of $1200 during that period, while taking part in "Our Gang" comedies, will be chosen next week by a board of judges during a personal appearance of all children entered.

ADMITTED FREE

Each child entered is to appear at Loew's Orpheum Theater at 10 a. m., on some day next week, as specified, accompanied by one parent. Each child, and parent will be admitted free as guests of this newspaper.

They are to go directly to the Hamilton pl. box office, where Tojo tor J. Morris, manager of the theater will meet them.

No other invitation than this, now given in the Boston Evening American, will be necessary. Just go to the Hamilton pl. box office of the theater, mothers, and you will be taken care of.

Don't look for any other kind of invitation as none will be sent.

Here is the schedule. All children entered who think they resemble "Fatty" are to appear at the Orpheum on Tuesday at 10 a. m.

All those entered who think they look like "Freckles" must be at the theater Wednesday at 10 a. m.

On Thursday, all "Wheezers" will be judged. Friday, "Jean Darling" entries, and Saturday all who think they look like "Farina" or "Mary Ann" will be looked over by the judges.

TO BE FILMED

One child who most closely resembles each of "Our Gang" will be selected by the judges and will not only be candidates for the grand

Live Forever Sponsor Takes Own Life by Hanging

Lowell, July 26—After announcing he had worked out a system of philosophy, the keynote of which was that man could "live forever," Carl Bernhaum, of this city, took his own life by hanging himself from a tree at Pelham, N. H. His friends here are puzzled to account for his suicide. They said he was a great student.

POET SET FREE IN HURRY

New York, July 26 (INS)—Maxwell Bodenheim, poet and novelist, who had been leading reporters a merry chase since the disappearance following the recent suicide of Miss Virginia Drew, his protege, was released after being found by detectives in a Harlem dance hall early today.

Although no charge had been made against him, he was taken to a police station "on general principles" and questioned.

The detectives had read so much in the newspapers about Miss Drew's suicide and the visit of Dr Martin J. Loeb of this city to Bodenheim's cottage in an art colony at Provincetown, Mass., to bring home his 18 year old daughter, Gloria, that they hustled the novelist to a police station on sight.

Bodenheim was surrounded by a twinkling group of girls after being released, he went home.

Thus the great Bodenheim mystery, about which six suicides, fights and disappearances were, suddenly from the front pages into the limbo.

Bodenheim, or at least a man who reluctantly admitted he was the Greenwich Village poet, was talking with Ruth Mason, a dancing instructor at Leo's Hall, early today, when he was pointed out to two detectives making a regular tour of inspection.

Police have advised the family of Miss Drew that Bodenheim cannot be implicated in the girl's suicide. The Loeb girl is with her mother at a Catskill resort. Bodenheim is back in town after several days of seclusion in New England; the police are not interested—so the story ends.

TUNNEY-HEENEY FIGHT RETURNS TONIGHT

MR. BOSTON

By Jack Conway

NEW YORK, July 26—Mr. Boston today insisted that his food be served to him in sealed packages, and that he have the privilege of removing the stoppers from the bottle of spring water which he ordered for his meals.

"I have a seat in the press row right up against the ring for tonight's bout and I do not intend to allow anybody to poison me and then grab my dough," confided the veteran. "I believe in taking as many precautions as those Tunney and Tom Heeney.

"I was up in Dinty Moore's place on 46th st. when a strong arm squad was packing in ice the steak which Tunney will consume after he weighs in. Billy McCabe, former prison commissioner of New York and the champion's confidential man, was directing affairs.

"Dinty Moore himself was helping to put the ice in the contains touching the steak

"Nobody ever received a Mickey Finn with Mother Moore and my self looking after the food," said Dinty, "if any of those gambling rogues should come around here, I would hit them over the dome with a cleaver.

"A nice boy is Tunney. He has been eatin' in here on and off since he returned from the war. It is glad I am to prepare his food for a fight like that."

MR. BOSTON asked Dinty what a "Mickey Finn" was.

"Sure now, you ain't trying to fool me? I guess you know what a Mickey Finn is as well as I do. It is a little powder which the gamblers use to drop into a boxer's water or mix with his food just before a big bout. It's a kind of makes them drowsy and also sick to the stomach. And how can a man fight his best under such conditions?

"I've been guardian angel to these Mickey Finns for a good many years. Johnny Lundos was the first champion to have me prepare his food on the day of a fight.

"Mother Moore always got up a special beef broth for Johnny which he drank the minute he weighed in. Scotty Monteith would have the broth with him in a thermos bottle and he would slip it to the little champion as soon as he hopped off the s . .

"Later Johnny would drop around for a good steak, a vegetable or two and some water before he left for the scene of the battle. A great little fighter was Lundos.

"Jack Sharkey is another head-liner who always had Mother Moore keep her weather eye peeled against Mickey Finns."

"JIM JEFFRIES was the first boxer of prominence to claim he was poisoned before a big bout," went on Mr. Boston. "Jeff declared somebody doctored his tea before he entered the ring with Jack Johnson at Reno.

"I always thought Jeff's story was a pipe dream. His real trouble was due to a long layoff and the fact Johnson was one of the best heavyweights the boxing game has known.

"Dempsey is alleged to have been slipped a Mickey Finn before his bout with Tunney at Philadelphia. I was recently told by one close to Dempsey that the poisoned arrow was shot by one of his camp followers, a man in whom Dempsey had the greatest confidence. Jack was advised after being stricken to hop a train for Los Angeles and not to fight. He refused to do this for fear of being declared yellow.

"WHEN Tunney took precautions against being poisoned, I do not believe he distrusted anybody connected with Tom Heeney. He knows that Charley Harvey and the Mortimer brothers are above such practices.

"Tunney, however, has been around Broadway long enough to know that there are plenty of sure thing gamblers who would not stop at anything which would make it possible for them to make a cleanup.

"It is only necessary to go back a week or so to the happening at the Empire track when a sponge was placed in the nose of one of the thoroughbreds so that a gang of sure thing boys could make a killing.

"Tunney may spend a great deal of his time reading Shakespeare, but he is, nevertheless, blessed with a knowledge of the ways of the world.

"I am still stringing along with Gene to successfully defend his championship."

Runyon Picks Title Holder to Win

By DAMON RUNYON

New York, July 26—Up from the Antipodes comes a man from the fighting forces of the Anzacs in the big war, barrel-bodied, hairy-chested Tom Heeney, of New Zealand, to battle the former United States marine, Gene Tunney, for the world's heavyweight championship at the Yankee Stadium tonight.

They will present an incongruous picture as they square away. Tunney, the champion, is tall, graceful and handsome, a veritable Adonis of the prize ring, a man of cultured bearing and poise.

Heeney is short and stocky, with gray hair above his temples and great corrugations in his face. He would pass for a prosperous cattle driver.

Short of arm and thick of leg, there is nothing about the New Zealander that they call the Rock of Down Under to inflame the imagination, while Tunney is the beau ideal of the fighting man, in appearance, at least.

Yet Tom Heeney, at thirty years of age, fought his way through a barrier of pugilistic contention during the past year to the position he occupies tonight—the challenger and, possibly before midnight tomorrow, the new champion.

He has an outside chance to win. The so-called dope favors Tunney, a skilful gloveman, to outpoint him easily in the fifteen rounds, for Heeney's fighting style is to surge forward constantly, never taking a backward step, and that style figures to impale him on the sharp left hand of the champion.

But the element of luck may run for Heeney tonight, as it ran for Tunney in his fight with Jack Dempsey in Chicago a year ago, when Dempsey failed to retreat to the proper corner after knocking Tunney down.

The element of luck, good or bad, is sometimes represented in the prize ring by a bad cut, a foul, a fall, or some other mishap.

Then there is a possibility that Tunney's fighting edge may be dulled by his lay-off of a year, and that after the early rounds he may find himself unable to hold back the surges of the New Zealander.

Tunney's record would seem to belie this possibility, because he had not fought for a year before he met Dempsey the first time to win the heavyweight title, and he did not fight again for another year afterward, only to beat Dempsey again.

NEYER accounted a damaging puncher, but always more of a defensive boxer, Tunney has intimated that he will endeavor to put a little of that killer phase to the proceedings that the customers love.

He ought to be able to hit Heeney with every punch he knows, and while the Rock has never been knocked out Bud Gorman and Dauling had him on the floor in his earlier fights in this country.

NO MONEY FOR HEENEY IF HE WINS FIGHT

By JACK CONWAY

New York, July 26—Gene Tunney will receive the entire purse of $625,000 in the event he loses in his 15-round heavyweight championship battle with Tom Heeney at the Yankee Stadium tonight.

Rickard has guaranteed the champion $525,000 and the challenger $100,000

Tunney has a private ag[reement] with Heeney by the terms of [which] he will get the entire $[illegible] stopped from his [corner].

Heeney will [get] desire [to] lose his end of the purse. He knows that he will be able to demand a million dollars to defend his championship next year if he is successful in licking Tunney.

Tunney continued to [be] favorite in the betting. [He] was 4 to 1 on Dempsey [in] many title Heeney matches.

What few wagers have [been] laid on the champion [have] been in regard to [the] way he gets rewards and [the] time. They are betting 2 [to] 1 Tunney wins by a knockout.

Heeney, not a [slugger] of [the] very highest class, [has] an iron-like constitution and [his] endurance will [be] the key and [he may] [illegible] trouble, a winner.

ALTHOUGH I figure Tunney will be successful in defending his championship, I would not be the most surprised person in the world if Heeney's ruggedness were to wear the title holder down during the last five or six rounds of the contest.

This Heeney person is [illegible] and has plenty of [illegible] always been in there [illegible] going, weather the distance [illegible] 10 or 20 rounds.

The tip from the [illegible] camp is that the champion intends to go out for a knockout. He [illegible] to carry the battle to Heeney.

It will not be necessary for Tunney to carry the battle to [illegible] longer. Heeney is one of those [illegible] who will meet any one half way. In fact, he will [illegible] the other bird three-quarters of the way if necessary.

London All Steamed Up" Over Heeney-Tunney Fight

London, July 6 (AP)—The Tunney-Heeney fight apparently could arouse little more enthusiasm in Great Britain if it were held in a London ring instead of 3000 miles away.

Preparations for the bout, the fighters' statements, their chances, couched in the customary confident terms, and the opinions of the experts are splashed all over the front pages of the afternoon newspapers, while speculation as to the outcome is the chief topic of conversation wherever men congregated.

Heeney Says:

"I will give the champion the battle of his life. I shall be right in there at the end of the 15th round if the fight goes to that stage.

"I have fought the finest heavyweights in the country since coming here. But I will strive as I never did before to knock the crown from Gene's head.

"I am confident that the spectators will see a fast fight at the Stadium tonight."

Tunney Says:

"On the eve of the championship battle with the British challenger I wish to reiterate that I am fully confident as a result of my splendid condition that the title shall stay in the U. S. A.

"Heeney is meeting [illegible] a different fighter than the one who took the title from Dempsey.

"I am at the peak and believe tonight's fight will prove it."

CHAMPION IS FAVORED TO KEEP TITLE

was given all the best of it on his way up.

Tex Rickard thought that a foreign fighter would be a gate attraction. But Tex has learned otherwise. Tunney's literary efforts have made him fearfully unpopular around New York, where literature is mostly confined to the books at Belmont and Aqueduct.

Heeney's lack of class and color in ring him null and void with the usual ticket buyer. There is a last minute drive on today, but it's nothing like the made rush for last minute dusts for the Sharkey-Dempsey row.

The customers roam casually to the windows and bargain. The price of one set of tickets has receded from $6 to $3. Most of the box office invaders were handing in five spots and waiting for two dollars' change.

GENE TUNNEY should win this fight from here to the Boston airport. The champion has only fought twice in a couple of years, but he is the greatest physical specimen the ring has known since Fitzsimmons.

He's a fast, crafty boxer, and he packs a mean clip in his right hand. Gene shouldn't have the slightest trouble blinding Heeney with his rapier left, and then battering him down with a crushing right.

There has been talk about the Australian's dynamite. He can't take it. Jack Sharkey hit him with everything short of a stop kick, but Tunney is a better general than Sharkey. The champion can walk forward all night.

He is always in shape, and admits that he never came in for a fight in better trim. He can go 15 rounds or 50, as well as the next one. Tunney wants to win this one by a knockout. He would like another million dollar shot. And he has one way to get it is to show a kayo punch. From where your correspondent sits it looks like the long distance may help the perfectly conditioned Tunney much more than it will aid the plodding Thomas from down under.

LOTS of us think Dempsey licked Tunney last September. The bullshaloo about the long count made the world forget the remarkable comeback Tunney put on in that Chicago rink.

Gene was floored as cold as several tons of ice in the seventh round. He had 15 seconds to recover in, and he did recover. He was able to stagger up and to run backwards for a full minute.

The rested Dempsey couldn't get close to him. Right there was a fine combination of courage and condition. Only a superbly fitted athlete could have pulled it.

Dempsey, tearing in, hit Tunney six times with everything. The same blows that crushed the giant Willard. Gene took it, was as frean as a daisy in the eighth, and had Jack staggered, bleeding, and all but out in the tenth.

A slow moving fighter like Heeney isn't going to bother that kind of a physical specimen much, over any route.

BROADWAY is gloomy about this fight. The hotels haven't been jammed with the visiting firemen, not at all. A young man who knows pretty much about these things told us this morning that the advance sale was not over $400,000.

This would mean only a big day's business, a gate of something less than $1,000,000 for the title. There will be no profit in that. When the figurers are paid off, the Hillcrest Country Club people will be in red ink for at least $10,000.

Which may mean the end of Tex Rickard. The big hearted promoters veled last year when the profits of the Chicago war were only half a million. They had dreamed of that much once a month.

Times have been bad this year. The first six months showed a deficit of $35,000. Mister Rickard may have to devote all of his time this winter to the new garden in Boston.

AN effort was made to stimulate interest by announcing that Jack Dempsey would second Heeney. That started the customers for the box office. They will pay to see Jack, even though he is retired. But the elusive Mister Dempsey refused to take the bait.

He stated flatly that he would do no seconding; that he hoped the Heeney people would not be reserved judgment as to which that might be. Jack naturally doesn't like Tunney, for Gene took his crown away.

But he may come back to fight the champion again, and he isn't stupid enough to get himself in wrong with all the fight game. Seconding an Australian against the American champ, would be what the boys call a faux pas.

COEN SCORES ONE SET VICTORY OVER TILDEN

Paris, July 26 (INS)—Although suffering from a blistered hand, Wilbur ("Junior") Coen, young Kansas City tennis star, defeated William Tilden, 2—7, in a practice set on the Roland Garros Stadium this afternoon.

"I have to admit that Bill is not up to form, but let us hope he will find his stride tomorrow," said Coen.

HEENEY LOSES EVEN IF HE WINS

night into a tiger of the ring like Dempsey. Such things do not happen.

If Tunney is to win by a knock out, it will be only after he has cut Heeney down by a steady flux of left and right hand punches to the head.

Jack Sharkey and Jack Delaney both batted away with everything they had to Heeney's chin and failed to budge him.

And Tunney cannot rock any harder than either Sharkey or Delaney.

Sharkey hailed Heeney with two terrific right hanters on the [illegible] in the first round of their battle. Honest Tom merely blinked his eyes and paraded forward.

Delaney was confident he would knock Heeney for a loop. He felt that a plodder like Heeney would be wide open for a right hand smash. Delaney was partly right. He scored with three terrific rights to the chin, but Heeney was still in there fighting. He continued on in his methodical way until he had piled up enough rounds to entitle him to the decision.

The coming battle has not any great amount of color. This is due chiefly to the fact that neither Tunney nor Heeney are box office. People from all parts of the world went to see Dempsey and his terrific mauling. If Tunney could hit like the old timer this show would have gone over big rather than have become the flop of the century.

If Heeney were a puncher, he would have saved the show. Tunney is the most unpopular champion we have had in years, and the public would like to see him knocked bowl-eyed. They don't figure Heeney can accomplish this feat, which is one of the reasons the fight has not caught on.

RICKARD now admits that the net gate will be well under the million dollar mark. He has given up all idea of making money on the show, and is hoping that he gets from under. Tex will be perfectly satisfied if he breaks even on the venture.

"It may all be for the best," the promoter remarked to a gathering of newspaper men at the Garden. "If I lose money on this show everybody in the world will not want to become a fight promoter."

Rickard plans all the moves for the flop of the show on Tunney. He believes Gene has high-hatted the sporting customers away from the box office.

Only the purposes of bullyhoo, Rickard is saying Heeney has an even chance of winning. Tex is openly declaring the New Zealander comes through with a victory.

In the event Heeney wins the title, Rickard will move heaven and earth to get Dempsey to come back for a crack at the championship next year.

THERE are thousands of unsold tickets. The first 20 rows went at $40 a seat. But there are wide open spaces in the other sections of the house.

Boxing managers and boxers refused $3a complimentary tickets rather than pay the 23 per cent federal and 5 per cent State tax. They were satisfied with $5 and $10 tickets.

TRIBE BETTER IN HOME TOWN OPENER

By JOE CASHMAN

Change of scenery appears to have made a new club of our Braves. Returning to the Wigwam after a most wretched western invasion they looked like champions while taking the second-place Chicago Cubs into camp.

And, best of all, they won with such ease that they are confident they can repeat this p. m.

Dick Delaney, best of the Tribal right-handers, is all primed to hurl and if he has anything at all, his mates promise to make it two in a row over the Bruins even though Guy Bush, one of the best of Joe McCarthy's crack box staff, is down to oppose them.

The Cubs are cocky and die hard, but they don't look like a serious pennant threat. At least, they didn't against Brandt.

They had countless opportunities to score, but the only time they cashed in was when Hack Wilson knocked out his 22d home run of the season with nobody on in the seventh. The clout was the long-est ever made into right field at the Tepee, the ball landing in the runway between the bleachers and pavilion and bouncing out into Causey st., but it only counted for one run and that wasn't half enough.

They threatened in the sixth when Stephenson reached third with one out but he was cut down at the plate when Hartnett rolled to Bell and again in the seventh when Grimm arrived at the hot corner with one away but he, too, was erased at the platter when Beck rolled to Bell.

That's the kind of ball the Braves played.

20 FIRST TIME QUALIFIERS IN FIRST ROUND

By BILL GRIMES

Nashua, N. H., July 26—Twenty first-time qualifiers are in the first round of match play for the New England amateur championship, which started this morning at the Nashua Country Club.

The remainder of the field is equally divided between two and three-time qualifiers.

Jimmy P. Stratton of Bass Burn, J. M. Batchelder, Salem, Herbert Jaques, the Country Club, A. M. Hoxie, Sandy Burr, W. A. Whitcomb, Charles River and H. E. Kenworthy, Metacomet have made the match play grade in every New England Championship, while Jesse Guilford, the Hersey Brothers, Win and Fran, Herb Hunt, Bill Binney and Joe Lynch have weathered two qualifying rounds.

In the field today there are three New England state champions, George McKee, the former Dartmouth captain, who was the medalist, with a fine 143, is the title holder of Vermont; Forbes Wilson, of Webbgannet, is the champion of the State of Maine, while Brad Oxnard replaced Ellis Gartner in the recent Rhode Island State championship.

TUNNEY FLIES TO SCENE OF BATTLE

Speculator, a crow-flight distance of some 250 miles, was 2 hours and fifteen minutes.

It was planned to take Tunney to a private house in the vicinity where he might rest while awaiting the official weighing in at the Yankee stadium at 2 o'clock.

Billy Gibson, the champion's manager, was the first to alight the Tunney plane from the front. He sighed with obvious relief as it made a clean landing, for Gil son was frankly worried by the hop.

Tunney and his friends were fe ried to the yacht club float shortly before 12:30, the champion stepping ashore to the cheers of several hundred spectators, grouped on the club veranda, and perched upon points of vantage along Riverside drive.

"The trip was perfect," he said with a smile, "I couldn't feel better."

His looks supported his words, for he appeared the picture of glowing health as he idled a moment in the float before leaving the club. The champion's demeanor was composure itself, too.

Before he departed, he was approached by two detectives who immediately placed themselves at his disposal for the remainder of the day.

"Every man, woman and child" in Speculator turned out to wish Tunney success as he got into the plane for the flight to New York. He was smiling and happy.

The champion, who arose at 7 o'clock, his usual hour, assured his well wishers that he was in the best physical shape of his fistic career and was confident he would dispose of Heeney.

Early this morning, Bob and Winston, who were injured more than a week ago when their plane crashed into a tree while taking off from the fairway on the Hamilton Country Club golf course, returned to the links and made a successful takeoff in an Avian plane owned by this millionaire.

Bob explained that he attempted this dangerous stunt to silence friends who have been "kidding him" about the mishap.

Tunney was in a cheerful mood when he left his room at the Hotel Kimball this morning. He said he slept soundly during the night.

Jack Dempsey Is Neutral—Says Fight Will Be Close

FIGURES IT IS A TOSSUP

Former Titleholder Says Result Up in Air After Fifth Round

By JACK DEMPSEY
Former World's Heavyweight Champion

Georgetown, Del., July 26—Now that I'm "expert" on a heavyweight championship fight for the first time in my life, I suppose that it's up to me to do like all the other boys. Flip a coin and call it, and, after that, to name the man I think will do the winning.

But I hope no one will blame Tunney or Tom Heeney if I'm getting it all wrong. I'm a sport reporter and not very expert. However, there aren't a lot of fistic affairs coming up for me to pick, and I'm going to get into the spirit of the thing—and so here I go with my pick.

It's "gone Tunney—if—and—if—"

But I've got to stick my money on my selection.

TUNNEY HAS CLASS

Tunney has class. Nothing that's ever given a boxer greater skill than Tunney would be hidden from me. I've had the opportunity to watch him in the gymnasium, in the ring and in action against the best men in the game. I've seen him when he was right and when he was wrong. I've seen him when he was in shape and when he was out of shape. I've seen him when he was fighting for the championship and when he was fighting for a few dollars in a small club. I've seen him when he was fighting for himself and when he was fighting for others. I've seen him when he was fighting for the love of fighting and when he was fighting because he had to fight. I've seen him when he was fighting to make money and when he was fighting because he couldn't earn money at anything else. I've seen him when he was fighting for the championship and when he was fighting for a few dollars in a small club. I've seen him when he was fighting for himself and when he was fighting for others. I've seen him when he was fighting for the love of fighting and when he was fighting because he had to fight. I've seen him when he was fighting to make money and when he was fighting because he couldn't earn money at anything else.

But if Tunney's left isn't what it used to be; if Heeney can avoid B., as they say in England, then Heeney is very likely to upset all the "dope" the experts have cooked up, ground into Tunney and hammered around hard enough and often enough to win the fight.

If Tunney can jump right into the ring, and take the open fighting he has the advantage. If he can't get into Heeney and Tom get close I don't think much and Heeney wins.

But I notice that when Tom Heeney did he didn't care to be mixed up with every good punch he got. Wasn't I noticed that, I beg to remind myself.

"Suppose Heeney cries crosses Tunney and decides not to do anything—suppose he just runs for the champion to come to him! What then?"

But I don't think that Heeney will try to make Tunney do the leading. It seems to me that Tunney can't afford to let Heeney do the leading. It seems to me that Tunney can't afford to let Heeney do the leading. It seems to me that Tunney can't afford to let Hee

HOLLYWOOD, July 26—No wonder Tom Mix expressed interest in those foreign skeeks who wear tasks and speak with an intriguing accent. Tom is going to feature plenty of hand kissing [illegible] in "The Drums of Araby." He travels around the globe, all in his cowboy uniform, he and Tony, and he meets up with a group of [illegible]

The feminine appeal in all this [illegible] is Sharon Lynn. The [illegible] is Miss Lynn's second picture with Tom Mix. I don't know a thing about her ability as an actress but I am willing to go on record as saying there are few girls as pretty in Hollywood, where there are more pretty girls to the block than in any town its size in the world. Rob and Dorothy [illegible] director.

ONE of the most extraordinary [illegible] actresses in Hollywood is Betty Compson. Betty has been playing in pictures for 10 or 12 years consistently and successfully. Today she looks as young as she did when she first started and today she is as much in demand as was in the days when her name was emblazoned in electric lights from coast to coast.

It is [illegible] the star feed of her work [illegible] which is something. All of which is only a preface to the bit of news that she will play one of the important parts in [illegible] picture, "The Scarlet Seas."

I believe I visited yesterday that Loretta Young has the lead.

SOME erase in the movies are [illegible] suggested that a title in [illegible] per cent of a picture's value. Well, even then "Times Square" as a manikin. That ought to be worth 75 per cent. It's a good name [illegible]

We will have a chance to see if the picture is as good as the name, for Joseph Boyce has already started directing Alice Day, Arthur Lubin and Johnny Arthur in [illegible] which is perhaps a bit risqué in its [illegible] of ditto old Manhattan.

* * *

If Roger Davis is half as amusing [illegible] he should furnish a few good laughs in Bebe Daniels' next picture, Roger, who is associated with Fanny Brice, and who came West when she decided to try her luck [illegible] plans to play a part in her picture only the screen can reveal just what the camera did to Roger. He and his pals are waiting to see.

* * *

THERE is now on the way from New York a sound device which is to be installed in the Pathe studios in Culver City. Cecil De Mille will bow to the popular demand and use that device to add sound to "The Godless Girl." This means that he will refilm certain sequences to permit talking.

At least he had thought he would [illegible]

Money Love

Which Power Is the Greater, Money or Love?

CHAPTER XXI.

MRS. LUNGSTON was one of those India rubber people who can bounce back instantly from any shock, disappointment or failure.

And now she had a plan all ready for Lily and Pat.

"I want you to wait for 24 hours before you even ask for a marriage license," she said. "I want you to take plenty of time to think over what you're doing. Then maybe you won't do it."

Lily smiled. "Oh, won't I!" she was becoming sprightly, when Pat stopped her.

"It's a pretty good idea of your own self, Lily. Twenty-four hours will give you a chance for some other thought, after all."

So finally Lily promised to wait for nearly a day before she made up her mind to become Mrs. Patrick Brannigan.

"But I'll not stay here," she said firmly. "If I do my waiting at your house, Pat, I promise I'm not going to wear my mind out knowin'."

Having him with her a minute longer, Pat decided, was a temptation he could not resist, and he followed her.

Mrs. Lungston looked from one to them, and felt no pang of regret.

Under the noon-tide sun the brown-shuttered Bradbury house seemed to be taking a nap. Its blinds were half-drawn, its front door was closed. The gate was closed, and it sneaked drowsily on its hinges when Pat and Lily walked down and went into the yard.

For corroding two suitcases, Jed Wiggin had not done a bad job.

From the open window of the second floor came a sound of a woman's voice singing "My Old Kentucky Home," and of water running into a sink.

And along with these melodious sounds an appetizing odor of fresh bread came floating out through the open windows.

"Mmm! Do you smell that? It reminds me that I'm hungry." Lily said, as they went up the two steps that led to the back porch—the neatest back porch imaginable, with a scrubbed table in the middle of it, and three pies standing on it to cool. They were still steaming as if they had just been there.

Pat pushed open the screen door and held it for Lily to pass into the house ahead of him.

In the middle of the kitchen stood Mrs. France, wiping her dripping hands on a snowy linen towel. Her steel-rimmed glasses were pushed up high on her forehead, and her blue eyes were round with amazement as she looked to and saw Lily and Pat on the threshold.

"Good bless me soul!" she cried. "If it isn't Pat and that girl!" She had a way of thinking aloud sometimes that was very startling.

"What's happened, for pity's sake?" she asked, looking from them to the letter in their feet.

Pat in Her as simple, straightforward way. "I've quit my job, and Lily's given up the hard to marry me tomorrow," he said, as quietly as if he were reading a weather report in a newspaper.

Mrs. France hung her towel over a hook, and turned to the table that was covered with pans and spice tins and flour. "Well!" she cried, breathlessly. She was frowning in a puzzled way, as if it were hard for her to take all this in. "Now, then, let me get that straight—so Mrs. Lexington going to marry you? But you told me she was engaged to another man, and in the newspaper, and—"

"Oh, that's over now, and she's going to marry another man. It even tells his name—"

"But She's Made Up Her Mind to Marry Me Instead"

"Yes it does," Pat agreed with her. "But she's made up her mind to marry me instead. I think she's crazy to do it"—he grinned at Lily who put her hand in his—"but I'm not going to, anyway. I'm going to marry you, and I want to be sure she really wants to do it."

Mrs. France shot a curious look at Lily as she took back her hand from under Pat's arm and put it behind her. Lily had thought that this kind of a woman would be shocked at the idea of marriage without money, but she was not. She looked from one to the other of them, and her face softened.

"If you're not sure you want to, Pat, you'd better not," she said, shortly. "I should."

"I'm sure as sure can be," she said. "I'm sure I want to marry Pat, and he is sure he wants to marry me, and you and Uncle Ed can't show me anything to change my mind. So I'm not going to change it before I go with Pat for the license."

Mrs. France began to cut a fluffy, white loaf of bread into slices with a knife that was as sharp as a razor. "Well, I was going to say that if you were sure of yourself you'd better go back home and get married from there, with your own folks around you," she said, "but I guess you're old enough to know your own minds," and she gave a low sound, "Pat, you've been going 'round with that Katz girl for a long time, and you've liked her pretty well—and Miss Lexington cared enough for that other young man to promise to marry him. I never'll see much use in other as much as you think you do—but you—"

Lily nodded her head at her. "We've told all that over—doesn't it, Pat?" she asked, gaily. "Pat and I have argued it all out long and long ago. I guess I know he never thought a great deal about the Katz girl, and he knows I will like Uncle Ed, and Aunt Jane, and Miss Lexington cared enough for that other young man to promise to marry him. I never'll see much use in other as much as you think you do—but you—"

SYNOPSIS—Ah, Elsie De Vaux! Dreams are sometimes a mockery. A merry Christmas to you!

THE TEAR OF A WIFE

ELSIE DE VAUX was not a woman to cloud the sunshine of the present with dim forebodings, or plumb her husband's bosom. Yes, with Sir Harry by her side and her babe upon her knee, Elsie De Vaux could pillow her head upon his breast, never doubting his fidelity.

"So you are married and settled since I went abroad," said Jack Shorncliffe, of the firm of Grampus, Shorncliffe & Co.

"Have you 'sown all your wild oats'? All I have to say is your old sweetheart, Miss ——, has returned by steamer and inquired about you."

A slight sneer curled his handsome lip.

DIABETIC DIETS

USE EKSIP

Everyone knows that sugar is absolutely necessary for the body to function normally. To deprive the tissues of this important source of nourishment undermines the health, weakens the system, and makes a person open to the attacks of all sorts of disease, because of the inability of the organs to fight off disease germs. Then complications develop which are usually more dangerous and cause more fatalities than the diabetes itself. A booklet telling how to avoid drastic diets and eat the food needed will be sent FREE OF CHARGE to any sufferer of diabetes. Write M. RICHARTZ, Dept. 218, 210 W. 42nd St., N. Y.

Acid Stomach

Excess acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and sourness about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is harmless and tasteless and its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, never continue to suffer, when you learn how quickly, how pleasantly this premier method acts. Please let it show you—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids, 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By HELEN ROWLAND

"WHAT are men's clubs for?" demands a feminist.

• • •

Men's clubs, dear heart, are for the salvation of wives and the escape of husband.

• • •

They are the only remaining sanctuary, where a man can get away from WOMEN and be alone with his kind!

• • •

They are at once a panacea to men, a deliverance to women and a boon to marriage. Without them, few couples would live together long enough to celebrate their gold en wedding.

• • •

Never, in the history of the world, were men's clubs such a blessing to humanity as they are today, when a man is surrounded, north, south, east and west, by women; and even his once sacred haunts, the business office, the barber shop, the tobacco shop, the grill and the smoking car are sweetly invaded by the persuasive sex.

In his daily life, every man is practically smothered by femininity. He is shunted from the house to the office by one woman, and there taken in hand by another woman. Woman order his day, keep tabs on his pursuits, prescribe his diet, nag him, spoil him, bore him, rule him or emote over him.

• • •

Then and there, only, can he BE HIMSELF, and get back to his BEness.

• • •

There, only, can he stretch his soul and express his masculine opinion about things; put his feet on the divan, throw his ashes on the floor, eat all the things that disagree with him, and, for a brief while, feel once more like the Lord of Creation!

• • •

Meanwhile, the clubman's wife gets an evening off with full pay, and a chance to do those things she has been longing to do, but never has time to do with a man hanging 'round to be amused, petted and waited on.

• • •

There are moments when the most devoted of wives wants to be ALONE; to get into mental deshabille; to cream her face and get her beauty sleep; to run around to a nice, gooey, feminine play with her women friends, or to feed her soul on a good book. Where to park hubby, while she consorts with her own kind, is a problem—unless he belongs to a club or a few lodges.

Nothing holds a man and a woman together like a little separation! Nothing gives them such a fresh zest for each other's society as an evening away from each other. Nothing so relieves a man of that "smothered!" feeling around the house as the knowledge that he can get OUT of it!

• • •

Next to a graveyard, the safest place to park a restless husband, who has gotten on your nerves, is a man's club! They have done more than anything else to turn matrimony from a prison into a privilege.

NEW ENGLAND'S FLEETS NO SWISS NAVY

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor.

When a Shipping Board official at Washington asked: "Why don't New Englanders raise enough money to buy a fleet of ships?" he seems to have been uninformed regarding the situation here. New England's fleets are a reality today, they are no mere so-called Swiss navy. The Eastern Steamship has a fleet which I have been told is the world's largest example of coastwise shipping. And the Great White Fleet of the United Fruit Co. is entirely unrivaled in its field. Yes, Mr. Shipping Board official, we really have a fleet or two left!

Announcement has just been made that United Fruit is to construct immediately three more modern fruit ships of the usual design. United Fruit also has under consideration construction of four-passenger and fruit boats to be larger and better than any the company has yet constructed and to be so built as to be available for European service in case it is desired to use them in that trade.

Cotton textile circles and others directly or indirectly affected will await with interest details of the Homer Loring plan for a cotton mill merger in Fall River.

Edward W. Thomas, for the past year treasurer and agent of the Peninsular Mill in New Bedford, resigning, says Mr. Loring's plan, although not yet ready for announcement, is being rapidly whipped into shape.

Homer Loring

Mr. Thomas will be in charge of manufacturing for the consolidation when formed. During process of formation he will actively assist Mr. Loring in planning the merger from a standpoint of economical production. Mr. Thomas has been at the Pemquid a little more than a year. He said operations have been profitable and that earnings the past year have been sufficient to inaugurate dividends on the stock if directors see fit.

GOLD CONTROL PLAN IS SEEN IN OFFING

Benjamin Strong, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York is expected back in New York some time early next month, it was learned today. He has been in Europe for several weeks on a combination health-seeking and business trip.

Governor Strong's visit abroad naturally revived discussion of further international financial agreements and arrangements between the central banks of the leading nations.

It is emphatically denied in quarters close to the Federal Reserve here, however, that Strong can conclude any agreements binding upon either the Federal Reserve System or the Reserve Bank he heads.

The governor has been in conference with the most important banking leaders of Europe, including the executive of the Bank of England, the Bank of France and other central institutions. While the subjects of their conversations have not been disclosed, the undoubtedly were concerned with the paramount financial problems of the respective countries, particularly in relation to the position of the United States in the general international economic situation.

While it has been repeatedly denied that Governor Strong's presence in Europe at this time foreshadowed further gold movements of gold, it is recalled that previous "friendly visits" of central banking leaders were followed shortly by world-wide importance.

Following the last quarterly central bank conference, which concluded an agreement for a world gold basin, which would eliminate in great part any future international movements of gold.

This would be accomplished, according to report, through "earmarking" of the precious metal in place of its actual shipment.

GANG ENTRIES POUR IN WITH END NEAR

prize, but will also be a principal in a local "Our Gang" comedy to be staged in Boston and displayed on the screen at the Orpheum. All other children entered are hereby invited to take part in the filming of this picture as "extras."

Mrs. Harry Hall of Malden wrote:

An enclosing snapshots of my two little girls, Lorraine and Elaine, who, we think, resemble "Jean Darling" and "Mary Ann" respectively, and which, I believe, are as clever. Many of our friends told me we should enter them.

Mary V. Tashjian of Arlington wrote:

I have watched with interest the progress of the "Our Gang" resemblance contest. I did not think of entering my child's name until one day she wanted to look at the pictures in the Boston American I was looking, one of which was of that adorable "Jean Darling." In comparing Adrea with Jean's picture I found a surprising likeness. If she should win the grand prize the money will be used for her education, the one thing I desire most, wishes to give his children. I hope that many others do, that Adrea will win the prize, and if she is not so fortunate that she will at least be able to take part in the local picture.

BOOSTS "GANG"

Mrs. Ella R. Fife of Milton, wrote:

Jean is a darling, and so is our Ruth. May "Our Gang" of the East do credit to "Our Gang" of the West.

Mary Kiski of Cambridge, wrote:

I am sending two snapshots of my daughter Mary, because people tell me she looks like "Mary Ann." I think it a fine idea to have the children reviewed by the judges as sometimes pictures don't do a child justice. It is very exciting, and if Mary doesn't come out on top maybe she'll make a good comedy "extra."

Mrs. Gertrude Bernhardt, of Newton Highlands, wrote:

Enclosing amusing snapshots of "Bubbles," who has a large number of friends that think she resembles "Mary Ann." Bubbles has very large eyes, loves dancing and acting and would like to be the fortunate little girl.

Mrs. James E. Dakin, Jr., of Lynn, wrote:

Enclosed is the picture of another "Wheezer" contender for honors in the "Our Gang" contest. He has won several prizes in various contests and would indeed be delighted if he could add the favor in the eyes of the "Our Gang" judges.

TODAY'S SILLY DITTIES ECHO THE PAST

By FRED TOYE

DIZZY SONGS are no monopoly of this day and age. Old Timers who rail at "Chilli-Bom-Bom," "Constantinople" and other items of present-day musical annoyance, cherish fond memories of "Tra-La-La-Boom-Te-Yay," "Yip-I-Addie," and "In the Baggage Coach Ahead." If daughter sarwles "Ramona" in front of her sunwood vanity more or less in tune with the radio, you may be sure that Dad is guilty of executing his bathroom baritone to the measures of "My Merry Oldsmobile," whenever he thinks the sound of water rushing into the tub guarantees him secrecy.

TODAY'S COMPOSERS SKILLED

IT IS PROBABLE that composers of popular songs always took their leading themes wherever they found them. It would seem, however, that the moderns are more skilled in adaptation than their elders of a generation ago. Musical piracy is nothing new. Beethoven and Liszt didn't hesitate to appropriate their needs folk tunes of many lands. It is reprehensible only when it is put to base purposes, and when nothing is added to the original. Modern song writers have found prolific melody in Puccini, Schubert, Saint-Saens and other serious composers. On the other hand, Puccini borrowed from Weber, from Gilbert and Sullivan, from "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean," and what not.

FIGHTS SELL RECEIVERS

TONIGHT'S duet by those popular artists, Gene Tunney and Tom Heeney, scheduled to be broadcast direct from the Yankee Stadium in New York, has the edge on all other radio features of the evening, by long odds. Grand opera and symphony concerts may thrill vast audiences, but it takes a championship scrap to sell radio sets. With a heavyweight fight in prospect, Dad commences to rub symptoms of softening of the purse-strings, and the first thing the family knows, a truck has backed up to the front door and a shiny new inlaid console equipped with the last offings in electric receivers and dynamic speakers is dumped on the parlor rug, excelsior and all.

MAIN BOUT AT TEN

WEEI will pick up the New York Yankee Stadium at 9 o'clock for the broadcast of the preliminaries to the big bout. The main affair will probably loom up shortly before ten. From then on, countless thousands will hang upon every breath of the fighters' process, namely, Graham McNamee and Phillips Carlin. Doubtless a few chronic kickers will feel they have been cheated in this broadcast in view of the fact that Tex Rickard made a last-minute cut in the price of admission. It is tough to look forward to listening to the boredom of a show scheduled as a top price of $50, only to find that the attendants are there at bargain rates of $40 and less.

Tunney-Heeney Bout to Be Broadcast Tonight

The Tunney-Heeney bout tonight will be broadcast from the Yankee Stadium in New York through the National Broadcasting Company's Red Chain. The broadcast of preliminaries will start at 9 o'clock, and the main bout will probably go on the air at about 10 the fight will be described by Graham McNamee and Phillips Carlin. It will be heard locally through WEEI.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defence.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

Martha's Vineyard Trout Answer the Dinner Bell

Someone appears forever to be taking the maxims, sayings, proverbs, by-words and old saws we were brought up on and shooting them full of holes.

Take, for instance, the matter of fishing.

When you go fishing you are told that you must make no noise. Noise "frightens the fish away." There are men in Northern New England who would not take their wives with them on a fishing trip if you were to give them a bag of gold. They prefer the company of old cronies, who may be persons who don't amount to shucks.

There are fishermen who will not take boys with them—little boys, that is—and only a day or two ago the wires carried the story of the discipline administered to a certain collie because he barked while his master fished.

And now we are told, by a reputable citizen of Chilmark on Martha's Vineyard, that the anglers are "all wrong."

Myron Vincent is NOT an angler but a fisherman. Fishing is his trade, angling an employment for his hours of ease.

Mr. Vincent owns a brook. In that brook there are trout. Myron some time ago began the practice of throwing crumbs to them. What followed we learn from the Evening Standard of New Bedford, a journal so ardent and eager in its quest for the truth, the whole truth and nothing fanciful that it will not keep on its staff any young reporter who fails of an "A" in Sunday School:

Feeding them put it into his head. Mr. Vincent says, to test out the truth of the angling rule that one has to be very quiet to catch trout—that the slightest noise would frighten them away. He began by calling aloud, and found that they didn't mind a bit.

"I hollered as loud as I'd a mind to," Mr. Vincent stated, "and it didn't seem to disturb them."

The next step was to try whether the ringing of a bell would disturb the fish. It didn't. Up the stream the pretty creatures would flash, and a sudden spurt and widening circles here and there gave away the spots where they snapped up the floating morsels of bread.

Of course the fish came for the crumbs, Mr. Vincent reasoned, and the bell hadn't anything to do with it. But he tried, just for curiosity, to see what they would do when he rang the bell and threw NO crumbs. They came, yes, sir, they CAME AT THE SOUND OF THE BELL.

It is against Mr. Vincent's principles to call the trout and let them go home again empty, so they are always rewarded after they have assembled. And he is not be thought that they would come at sundown anyway, from habit, and not at any other time of day. They are not fed every evening, and they performed for the Standard at 3 in the afternoon.

If this story isn't true, then we do not know a true story when we see one. It might have been written by Truthful James. Note how the reporter piles fact upon fact, obviously keeping a firm grip upon his ambition to make the rewrite desk.

Give an accomplished liar a tale like this and the trout would do the bell-ringing. Let it come "Collect, n. p. r.," from Winsted, Ct., and Myron Vincent's Troupe of Bell-Ringing Trout would be signing for 30 weeks over the Loew circuit.

Trader Horn's Views

He Has a Poor Opinion of Some Modern Young Men

TRADER HORN, BACK FROM AFRICA, LOOKING OVER HIS GATE AT ENGLAND

Above you see that strange old Britisher, Trader Horn, well on in the seventies, who passed years among savages in Africa. He discovered, with the help of an intelligent woman, who "took down," or rather WROTE his book, that things he had seen and done interested the world.

In his old age one book and the reputation it made for him gave him comfort and financial ease that he had not been able to gain in the struggles of youth, his fights with savages and wild animals.

THINKING is the most profitable occupation.

Horn met every kind of man and every kind of animal in Africa. Now he leans on his gate, smokes his pipe, sees the world go by and tells what he thinks. He doesn't think much of some young men of today, as he finds them in England—possibly also in America, where he was recently a visitor.

"We've still the Viking blood with us," says he. "The fights across the ocean prove it." But, since he left England for Africa, a worthless youth has cropped up, and he doesn't think much of it. Says he:

But we've also a-plenty of these little town-bred pavement and cinema idlers—all cheap, waisted suits and swinging canes and cigarettes and an eye for the girls. I wonder the girls have any eye for them.

Too many won't-works, too. England has too big a load to carry to want that sort on her back as well. Drown 'em—like the Exiles up at Samba Falls drown their old men and women! When they're past usefulness to the community and a burden on their relatives they just heave them off a rock into the rapids. The crocs do the rest. That's Nature—hard and cruel.

We might reverse that order

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 26—Journalism in New York strikes me as being in drastic need of an anti-knocking organization. The French stand up for the French and Heaven knows the English stand up for the English, but American journalists spend their time roasting each other to a nice autumnal brown.

There is a clique in New York, for instance, that when left alone praise each other and when accused of log rolling roast each other, but they are rarely interested in anybody outside their group, one way or other. The reason is they are so in love with themselves they never heard of anybody else.

A critical viewpoint has become an obsession with many writers. They pore over the work of contemporaries for a mixed metaphor or a split infinitive. A split infinitive just tickles them pink. As a matter of fact, good grammarians agree there is no reason why the infinitive should not be split.

The Fowlers call it "a curious superstition." Conrad split infinitives all over the shop. Shakespeare and Wells used like as a conjunction. Perhaps it is because we are a young nation we have become so intolerant. Age brings tolerance. The reading public yawns at verbal slams. No writer has been so thoroughly heckled as Henry Mencken.

Recently an entire volume of abuse, under the title Menckeniana, was published. It was filled with excerpts from bombastic tirades for the Baltimore playboy. Sinclair Lewis is a close second in the panning. Yet Mencken retains his following, and the Lewis books sell like hot cakes.

An honest survey of the field would reveal the most popular writers are those knocked hardest by fellow workers. Technicians pant over grammatical absurdities, but the audience that pays for the writers' cake is interested only in the story and how interestingly it is told.

THE interior decorating and outside dubdubbery used to floss up old buildings are an interesting phenomena in a swiftly changing city. Several blocks from my hotel is a scabrous building long an eyesore to the neighborhood and filled with jinkie-jumble merchants.

The ground floor was an ordinary sized room partitioned off into a quick shoe repair shop, a fly-specked stationery store, and in the rear a cheap labor agency. The cellar was one of those Joe or Mike kindling and coal depots. It was suddenly vacated three weeks ago.

Yesterday I passed the spot and a smart and intimate little French cafe with a French name stood there. The front was spic and span, the tasty window abloom with flowers, and tubbed trees graced either side of the entrance. Inside there was a glow of soft pink lights and obsequious waiters in Tuxedoed attendance. The quick change seemed like an optical illusion.

A CERTAIN chain of restaurants after eight in the evening has the most scholarly looking crew of waiters to be found the world over. They are handpicked students from Columbia and several technical and theological schools who are working their way through colleges. It is an odd aggregation of tray wrestlers—aesthetic looking boys with Harold Lloyd glasses, tall foreheads and intellectual expressions.

MY exerience as a waiter during school days was somewhat like that of Chic Sale. Chic was fired for serving a patron water in a teacup in Indianapolis. I was bounced at the Manhattan cafe in Cincinnati for handing a gentleman a roll with my fingers instead of passing the basket in which they were held.

A FAMOUS cartoonist served apprenticeship as a waiter in New York. That is for three days. On the third day he was reaching over the table to place a well-filled bowl of soup in front of a character in a brand new suit known as Tough Larry Hannigan. Midway he succumbed to a hearty sneeze. But it wasn't so bad. He was out in a week.

Trader Horn's Views

with justice. Not drown the old 'uns if they've lived and worked faithfully, but reward them with ease in their old age. Drown the young won't-works instead! There wouldn't be any to drown after the first half-dozen had gone over Westminster Bridge!

I'd make 'em walk more. Man is not born to sit down all day unless he is old or infirm. Nowadays people sit as they ride to work, sit at work, sit coming home, sit while they watch others play cricket or football or make love on this so-called cinema—sit, sit, always sitting. That's not the way to breed men, the hardy fathers of hardy children. Make 'em walk!

The war made men of us, but the war killed most of the men it made. That's war's reward to itself. It must devour.

In few words Trader Horn gives you a picture of savage life in Africa, where old women and men, no longer useful, are thrown off a rock into the rapids where the "crocs"—crocodiles—do the rest.

For thousand centuries among savage and barbarous peoples, it has been the custom to kill those too old to be useful. In some cases they were eaten after they were killed.

And the old people took it for granted.

Reclus, in his "Homme et la Terse," "Man and the Earth," shows that widespread brutality.

Eskimos, to this day, in isolated places, put the worn-out old man or woman in an ice hut, with a little food, plug up the entrance to the igloo with a wet cake of ice that freezes solid, then ask no more questions.

The old people take for granted the statement that they are useless and should go. BY FORCE IF NECESSARY.

Perhaps on the whole it was not at brutal as it seems. Many a poor man and woman in our "civilization" can testify that a quick death would be preferable to dragging out the years in a poorhouse, or as a nuisance in the house of an unloving son or daughter.

GET GOOD ADVICE ON YOUR INVESTMENTS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

IT is often as hard to keep money safely as it is to get it in the first place.

The best rule for an investor is to consult those responsible people who make a business of studying the matter.

Go to your bank or to some established bond house and follow their advice. Don't listen to interested friends. Beware of people that have a sure thing.

The old rule is a good one, and that is that the larger the returns the more risky the investment. Don't imperil the safety of your capital just for the sake of 1 or 2 per cent interest.

Americans are said to sink $1,000,000,000 a year in bad investments. This is simply because they act on the advice of friends instead of financial specialists.

In the words of a recent magazine, "Americans who pride themselves on being the most thoroughly money-wise people on earth, are annually putting a round billion dollars into dubious financial schemes, practically all of which is lost eventually."

We know how to make money and probably are the best money makers in the world, but we don't know how to invest it and take care of it.

Men are about as bad as women; in fact, if anything, women are the shrewder of the two.

Don't go to your grocer or to a successful business friend, but to a financial expert for your advice. This is but common sense. You wouldn't go to your minister for medicine if you were sick. You wouldn't go to your doctor to talk about your soul. And when you want to talk about your money go to an expert.

The investment business is constantly growing more complex. It is impossible for any person of the ordinary type to make intelligent selections himself.

Any modern bank will supply you with an investment expert, and it is a good plan to listen to his advice. He may not offer you securities bringing great returns, but his counsel will be safe.

Even the wisest managers of their own business dare not trust their judgment in the matter of investments. There are so many securities on the market, some of them extremely hazardous and by badly managed concerns, that only one familiar with investments can weed these out and tell you what is safe.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

ONCE I saw a young negro fighting.

He fought in a ring of intense white light, while all about him men peered through a black scum of smoke—coughed, snarled, spat, roared for blood.

He fought like a lovely, leaping young leopard. His bronze body, gleaming with sweat, rose on small, quivering feet from the canvas—lit for a dancing moment—rose again.

Blows rained at him, but the flying body evaded nearly all of them. Those that landed were poisoned by the quick twist and turn of soaring flesh.

HIS FOOT WORK SAVED HIM. HE BATTLED, BUT HE BATTLED ON AIR—

Not once did he allow the canvas to chain him.

Not once did his mind and body cease their leaping flight—

HE FOUGHT AS MEN MUST FIGHT WHO WOULD CONQUER LIFE BY FOOTWORK.

Footwork will save you, too, in the game of life.

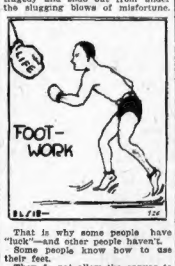
Few are powerful enough to slug their way through the bouts which Fate sets for men. And even those who are able to, suffer unnecessary punishment if they do not know how to parry the cruel thrusts. If they do not know how to DANCE ON AIR.

The quick twist of the imagination—

The swift leap of audacity—

The lightening parry of humor—

By such means do men evade trouble and slide out from under the slugging blows of misfortune.



That is why some people have "luck"—and other people haven't.

Some people know how to use their feet.

They do not allow the canvas to chain them—they do not take root or surrender to gratification—

THEY DANCE ON AIR!

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Man is not an organism; he is an intelligence served by organs.
—Hamilton.

Spite is a little word, but it represents as strange a jumble of feelings and compound of discords as any polysyllable in the language.
—Dickens.

If you wish success in life make perseverance your bosom friend, experience your wise counsellor, caution your elder brother, and hope your guardian angel.
—Addison.

True joy is a serene and sober motion; and they are miserably out that take laughing for rejoicing: the seed of it is within, and there is no cheerfulness like the resolutions of a brave mind.
—Seneca.

Human experience, like the stern lights of a ship at sea, illumines only the path which we have passed over.
—Coleridge.

Chide a friend in private and praise him in public.
—Solon.

Trust him little who praises all, him less who censures all, and him least who is indifferent about all.
—Lavater.

The mind that is cheerful in its present state will be averse to all solicitude as to the future, and will meet the bitter occurrences of life with a placid smile.
—Horace.
